1,200 Jobless in Woods ---Worst Winter Since War

VANCOUVER (CP)—Labor and management officials in the B.C. timber industry have forecast widespread unemployment in the industry this winter.

Both groups agreed it would be "the worst winter since the war" and some said unemployment might spread to other industries.

International Woodworkers of America expect to have 1,200 men out of work by mid-November. Already nearly 800 have been laid off.

"I cannot remember losing

1,200 men in such a short time," an IWA official said Monday.

"In nine years' experience I have never seen so many men looking for work as there are now."

A spokesman for employers said: "We have warned of the possibility of a recession in lumbering in the past and it looked as though we were crying 'wolf.' Now it appears to be here."

Officials agreed that sawmill workers will be hit first.

Two reasons given for the expected slump are:

Attempts by the government to control inflation by clamping down on new home mortgages, thus reducing the demand for new houses.

High shipping costs which have caused the United Kingdom to reduce orders from Canada and start buying more common grade timber from Russia and the Baltic countries.

A spokesman said the industry will have to consider asking Ottawa to lift the mortgage restrictions. He added that the expected recession had coincided with a seasonal decline in business.

Any surplus revenues would be put back into the system. Additional facilities would be built which otherwise would have to be paid for by the district through taxes or increased water costs.

The plan is for continuous logging. It would take 70 years to log the 20,000-acre watershed using the patch system.

The board meeting, chaired by Mayor Percy Scurrell and attended by Reeve A. C. Wurtel of Esquimalt and Reeve F. E. Norris of Oak Bay, approved the scheme, with only one member dissenting. Ald. Robert Macmillan.

FIRST NUCLEAR REACTOR FOR CANADIAN COLLEGE

HAMILTON (CP)—Construction of a $1,300,000 nuclear reactor for university and industrial research is to begin soon at Hamilton College, McMaster University, the college's board of governors announced today.

The reactor, principal item in a $5,000,000 expansion program in the field of engineering education and research, will be the first university reactor in Canada. It is to be financed jointly by the Canadian government and a group of Canadian industrialists.

Tentative date for the reactor to begin operation is autumn, 1958.

Logging Approved On Watershed

A general policy of logging Greater Victoria watershed on a sustained yield, patch-logging basis was approved in principle today by Greater Victoria Water Board.

Approval was given to logging of four 25-acre patches in the Sooke Lake area in the next year as an experiment.

After one year the board will check with outside authorities to determine whether the logging has in any way been detrimental to district water supplies.

The plan, put forward by Commissioner Ronald Upward, aims at providing more and purer water.

FLOW CUT 25%

The presence of old, mature trees now reduces the watershed flow by 25 per cent, Mr. Upward said.

Under the Upward scheme, the water district will do its own logging.

The commissioner pointed out that in recent years the water board has already approved logging of portions of watershed lands at Niagara Creek, and parts of the Sooke Lake area, all by contract.

"These initial contracts were by way of an experiment and the experience gained indicates that such a system of contract logging should be confined to suitable areas and circumstances."

French Hunt Sea For Gun Runners

PARIS (UP)—Premier Guy Mollet announced tonight that French warships will patrol the Eastern Mediterranean "to track down all arms traffic" which France accuses Egypt of sending to Algerian rebels.

Mollet told a cheering national assembly that France is recalling her ambassador from Cairo and appealing the alleged Egyptian-sponsored arms shipments to the United Nations security council.

France has charged that the steamer Athos intercepted off the Algerian coast last week with 70 tons of munitions was loaded in Alexandria as a gun-runner for Algeria rebels.

"We gave Egypt until 10 a.m. today to give us a satisfactory answer to the Athos question," Mollet told the assembly.

"But by 10 a.m. we had received no reply."

The plane carrying the rebel leaders was en route from Morocco by a circuitous route when it was ordered diverted to Algeria in a cloak-and-dagger middle-of-the-night operation.

French police with tommy-guns surrounded the aircraft and seized the rebel leaders.

Their surprise seizure brought a comment from Tunisian information minister Ben Yamedin that the planned "peace conference" in Tunis now "threatens to turn into a council of war."

As he spoke, Moslem youths waving Algerian nationalist flags broke through police lines in Tunis, yanked Europeans from their cars and burned the vehicles. The rioters wrenched the plaster seal from the French consulate, broke it up and threw the pieces at passing Europeans. Several were injured.

French troops were alerted for action if Tunisian authorities were unable to maintain order.

In Casablanca, hundreds of young Moslem men and women wound through the European quarter, chanting slogans as "Liberty for Algeria" and "Frenchmen go home, Algeria is not yours."

General strikes halted trade and industry throughout Tunisia. Buses and streetcars were stopped by strikes in the major cities of Morocco.

Red-Purged Officers Named to High Posts

WARSAW (AP)—Poland's parliament was called into session today amid public celebration of its newly-proclaimed independent course. A mass of new rumors of Soviet troop and warship movements in and around Poland were discounted meanwhile. Most Poles thought the threat had passed of Russian military intervention to halt Warsaw's disentanglement from Moscow controls.

Gen. Marian Spychalski, a once-purged officer, today was appointed deputy minister of national defence, replacing Gen. Kazimierz Witaszewski.

Warsaw radio said there had been a shakeup in Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's defence ministry. It said Gen. Spychalski, once purged with Wladyslaw Gomulka, the new chief of the politburo, had been appointed deputy defence minister and chief of political officers in the Polish army.

He took the place of Gen. Witaszewski, who had played a key role in exerting Stalinist control over Poland's armed forces.

There had been fears Rokossovsky might resort to a coup d'etat to maintain pro-Moscow forces in the party leadership.

There are many Soviet army officers in the Polish army, but most Poles think the rank and file of the army would not follow Rokossovsky against the new regime.

Reliable sources reported Monday that Polish troops at Szczecin (Stettin) and Wroclaw were organizing demonstrations against high officers and adopting resolutions declaring their unity with the people.

Angry Crowds Trample Soviet Flags

Angry crowds in Wroclaw, former German city of Breslau, stormed the headquarters of the Polish-Russian Friendship Society today and tore down and trampled on Soviet flags.

A Western eyewitness said the crowds yelled "Rokossovsky to Siberia!" and "Tell the truth about the Katyn murders."

Marshal Rokossovsky, a Polish-born Soviet Army hero of the Second World War was ousted Sunday from the United Workers party politburo in a purge of Stalinists.

The Katyn forest was the scene of the machine-gunning of 10,000 Polish officers in 1940 before Russia entered the war.

Similar demonstrations were reported from Stettin and the university city of Krakow. All three towns are near the Polish border with Communist East Germany.

The meeting of the Polish parliamentary body, called the Sejm, was its first since anti-Stalinist Wladyslaw Gomulka took control of the ruling Polish Workers' (Communist) party and promised to free this Communist country from Soviet domination.

The four-week session had been scheduled before the shake-up in party leadership. The legislators, elected without opposition four years ago, are due to be replaced in new elections Dec. 16.

A government shake-up, placing all the organs of the state firmly in the hands of the new party leaders, may be announced through parliament in a few days.

The reorganization possibly will include the removal of Rokossovsky as defence minister.

Plan to Raise Standard of Living

Parliament also is expected to take other popular steps, including new economic measures aimed at raising the standard of living.

Meanwhile it was reported at London that the public prosecutor of Poland has ordered a revision of all the indictments of those charged in last June's Poznan hunger riots.

At the same time, the prosecutor moved to have the court release all persons now held in custody but not charged with murder or robbery.

WASHINGTON (AP)—High American officials fear Russia may yet take drastic action—possibly including force—to smash Communist Poland's drive for independence. In their view, the most dangerous phase of the struggle for control of Poland is just beginning, with the Kremlin apparently undecided about its counter-move.

Russian Loggers See 'Cat' Show

NANAIMO—Visiting Russian timbermen, touring Canada under leadership of Russian minister of forest industries G. M. Orlov, today paid their second visit to Vancouver Island with a tour of Comox Logging and Railway Co. Ltd. operations at Nanaimo Lakes.

Under guidance of Gordon Naylor, camp foreman, the party visited one of the company's "cat shows," where yard-

ing of logs is done with a large rubber-tired diesel-powered tractor.

They were particularly impressed by the nine miles of paved road leading from the camp to the woods operations.

Wednesday the visiting party will visit Northwest Bay division of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., south of Parksville, where the company operates a fully modern logging camp.

OTTAWA ANSWERS BENNETT ATTACK ON CREDIT CURBS

High Winter Employment Forecast

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA—Employment is expected to continue at a high level throughout the winter months regardless of the federal government's anti-inflationary credit policies, informed government sources said Monday.

Charges by Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia that the federal government was "deliberately turning its back on a policy of full employment in Canada this winter," Mr. Bennett suggested that the new Bank of Canada discount rate of 3½ per cent would have the effect of stifling employment.

The inflationary pressures are so great within the Canadian economy at this time that the Bank of Canada's increase in its rate is not expected to materially reduce employment opportunities, another source said.

There was bound to be a decline in employment during the winter when house construction for example stops with the onset of sub-zero temperatures in the prairies. But plans are being laid here for extensive campaigns to stimulate winter employment. They may result in one of the biggest winter publicity campaigns of the kind ever experienced in Canada.

Record Employment

Employment across Canada during September continued at record levels despite the moves that have been made throughout the year by the Bank of Canada to curb inflationary tendencies. At Sept. 22 this year the number of persons with jobs was estimated at 5,676,000, a new peak for this period.

Unemployment for the September survey week totalled 97,000 or 1.7 per cent of the total 5,773,000 labor force. This unemployment figure compared with 138,000 who were out of work and seeking work at the same period in 1955.

Near record employment levels were maintained in the Pacific region during September, although the usual withdrawal of seasonal workers, particularly students from the labor force, caused some decline in the total numbers employed.

Persons with jobs in the Pacific region were estimated at 467,000 at Sept. 22, about 16,000 less than a month earlier, but 17,000 more than in September, 1955.

The peak of employment is an indication of the pressures at work within the economy, pressures that have not been too greatly reduced by the increased interest rates put into effect throughout the year by the Bank of Canada.

Surveys made by the federal government showed prospective investment outlays of about $8,000,000,000. This level of capital investment if it was achieved would be 28 per cent above last year's total.

Great Momentum

Such a proposed capital investment shows the tremendous momentum which lies behind the present expansion of the Canadian economy. That expansion, if allowed to continue, would exert considerable pressure on available supplies of materials, manpower and other economic resources.

It was desirable, the experts think, that the spending policies of Canadians emphasize restraint and prudence. Where this could not be achieved voluntarily the Bank of Canada, through higher interest rates and the imposition of retail credit curbs, could bring about some restraint.

The proposed enormous increase in investment planned for this year and determined by surveys in the late spring caused the federal government grave concern. It was to take place at a time when the export industries were producing more goods and services for the consumer were also producing more and at a time when employment was at a record high level.

The government economic experts doubted whether in Canada there were the plants, the raw materials and the man-

'Good Driver' Learns of Award In Hospital After 2-Car Crash

Last week's "good driver of the week" learned of her good fortune today in a hospital bed where she is recovering from injuries received in a traffic accident.

Hospital officials said today Miss Olive Buckingham, 44, of 43 Linden, was in "improved" condition with internal injuries suffered Friday night in a two-car collision.

Miss Buckingham was announced at Monday night's hockey game as the winner of two tickets to the Cougars' next home game.

She was singled out by city police traffic officers earlier last week as a safe and courteous driver.

She will also receive a special certificate as part of the present campaign by Greater Victoria police forces to emphasize safety practices during the winter months when the accident toll usually climbs.

Miss Buckingham was the driver of a car which was in collision with an auto driven by Eric Norlin, 2842 Blackwood, at Cook and Richardson Streets.

Her car veered into a parked auto after the collision. A passenger, Alice Caston, 44, of the same address, escaped serious injury.

71 DEATHLESS DAYS TO GO

Death Waits Four Before Year's End

Fifteen people have been killed in traffic accidents in the Greater Victoria region since the beginning of 1956.

At the same rate another four will die in the 71 days remaining before the end of the year.

These are the four lives it is hoped to save with the "72 deathless days" campaign inaugurated by the Times Monday.

And with them it is hoped to save pain and disfigurement for scores who may be involved in auto crashes.

Every driver in the community must take part in the campaign. It is only the individual driver who can do it by observing all traffic laws and exercising the greatest care at all times.

The record since Monday:
FATALITIES 0.
ACCIDENTS (in which injuries sustained) 1.

$2,200 GIVEN TO CHEST AT DOCKYARD

Civilian employees at HMC Dockyard have contributed about $2,200 in the current Community Chest drive, Commodore J. B. Caldwell announced today.

One shop of 25 men has given or pledged $220.

The Dockyard drive is well ahead of last year, he said, when total returns from the 3,300 employees was just under $2,000.

In another shop, two men were away sick and the other employees contributed to the Chest on their behalf "which was a very sound gesture," the commodore said.

power to achieve such a heavy increase in capital investment in full, along with the expected increase in exports, consumer goods and services and all the other things that are needed. The huge scale of investment in plant and equipment was also reflected in the very high level of imports and in the large inflow of non-resident money which in effect was financing the import surplus.

Government and bank economists feared that the total rate of spending, unless curbed, would run ahead of the ability of the economy to produce more goods and services.

To meet this situation what kind of fiscal and monetary policies were appropriate?

First the government sought to reduce its own demand for goods and services by pruning proposed governmental expenditures as set out in the 1956-57 estimates where possible. Capital programs of the various departments were reduced.

Phenomenal Boost

In the monetary field the increase in the demand for credit was phenomenal. Money has been in demand for many purposes but particularly to finance new business investment in plant, equipment and inventories during the past 16 months. A mounting demand for increased consumer credit has been reported.

The availability of funds has also been growing. Larger amounts are being saved out of the larger national income. More funds have been raised through new security issues and more capital has flowed into Canada from abroad. However, the increases in the supply of loanable funds has not kept pace with the increase in the demand for them. Consequently interest rates have risen.

The growth in the demand for loanable funds is the fundamental explanation of rising interest rates and the increasing tightness of money. That is the explanation of why it is more difficult and more costly today for borrowers to obtain the capital they need.

It would have been possible for the Bank of Canada to facilitate such an expansion of credit so that all the demands for money could have been satisfied without any increase in interest rates. But if this had been done there would then have been too much money competing for the available goods and inflationary price increases would have followed.

The Bank of Canada has been seeking to moderate the rate of increase in the expansion of credit so as to keep it in a reasonable relationship with the growth of production thereby by avoiding inflation, government sources said.

Saanich Blocks Vote on New Municipal Hall

A motion calling for a December referendum asking ratepayers whether they favor building an addition to the present Royal Oak Hall or construction of a joint hall with the city was defeated Monday night at a Saanich council meeting.

Reeve Arthur Ash and Councilors J. Ronald Grant, T. J. O'Neill and Ainslie Worthington opposed a referendum.

The reeve said a special committee has been formed to make a report on all phases of a joint city-Saanich municipal hall.

Now, he said, council wanted to go to the ratepayers without first hearing the committee's report.

MONEY AVAILABLE

The motion was made by Coun. Leslie Passmore, who asked that a referendum be placed before the electorate asking them if they favored the construction of an addition to the present hall to be paid out of existing funds, such as funds from reverted sale tax lands.

In addition, the councillor said the referendum could also ask ratepayers if they favored a joint municipal hall built in the city.

Coun. Passmore said he was presenting the motion to bring to a head the present discussions with the city over the construction of a joint hall.

Reeve Ash and Coun. Passmore clashed over the costs of a joint municipal hall.

The reeve said a joint hall would be less expensive for ratepayers and would provide all future needs for additional office space.

Coun. Passmore took the opposite view.

"My experience with amalgamation is that it will cost the taxpayers more money," he said. "We have sufficient funds on hand to look after all our office needs."

Coun. Passmore was supported by Couns. George Austin and Eugene Diespecker.

6-Month Term For Shooting At Logger

A Jordan River man who fired two shots at a logger was sentenced by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Assize Court Monday to six months in jail.

"You are lucky not to be accused of murder," the justice told Frank Joseph Miller who was found guilty of firing a firearm at Douglas Slater on May 18 at Jordan River, with intent to wound.

A jury deliberated for over one hour and a half and recommended leniency.

In sentencing the 58-year-old bridgeman, Mr. Justice Wilson said "you went berserk . . . completely lost control of yourself because you drank too much. I think you were out to kill this man."

TWO SHOTS

Evidence at the trial showed that Miller fired two shots with a shotgun at Slater who was working on a boom on Jordan River.

Slater, in his testimony, said after he heard the first shot he lay down flat on the log boom.

"I could hear the pellets from both shots around and above me," he said.

Earlier, Slater said, Miller attempted to strike him and to hit him with a piece of wood with a nail attached.

The firing of the gun climaxed a quarrel over beer Slater was to give Miller in payment for a bicycle which he gave to him, the evidence showed.

Vancouver Opens Drive To Legalize Sunday Sport

(BUP and CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER — The city of Vancouver started the wheels turning today in a drive to get its charter amended so that legislation could be passed to permit commercialized Sunday sport.

Aldermen said they planned to ask the British Columbia government for such an amendment in the wake of a Supreme Court judgment Monday which quashed the city's new Sunday sport bylaw.

Mr. Justice A. E. Lord ruled the bylaw was invalid and in violation of the Lord's Day Act and the Sunday Observance Act.

The ruling climaxed an intensive campaign which had been waged against the controversial legislation by Secretary Harold T. Allen of the Alberta and British Columbia chapters of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Introduction of the bylaw during the past summer brought almost immediate attack from Mr. Allen. It was passed by council on the strength of a city-wide referendum last December which showed residents in favor by a narrow margin of commercial sports on the Sabbath.

The Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast Baseball League took advantage of the bylaw and staged three Sunday games in the latter part of the season.

UNANIMOUS MOTION

Mr. Justice Lord's ruling reached council as it was sitting in regular session. Alderman Earle Adams immediately moved that the city go to the provincial government with its request for a charter amendment and the motion was passed unanimously.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice

Lord said that it is "beyond doubt that even if the legislature could delegate to the city the authority to enact such a by-law, it has not succeeded in doing so."

"In any event," his lordship said, "the by-law seeks to make lawful that which the Lord's Day Act by section 6 says shall be unlawful."

Under the Lord's Day Act of 1907, the ban on commercialized Sunday sport is Canada-wide but enforcement is left to the attorneys-general.

PLAYING IN A CUPBOARD, 2½-YEAR-OLD DIES IN FIRE

HIGH RIVER, Alta. (CP)—A 2½-year-old High River boy suffocated in his burning home because searchers were unable to find him in a cupboard under the stairway where he had apparently crawled to play.

Douglas Comstock, second youngest in a family of nine children, was later found huddled under the stairway as far as he could crawl.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Mary Comstock, was taken to hospital and treated for shock. All the other children, six boys and two girls, escaped injury.

Canada's Reds Hail Revolt In Poland

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's Labor-Progressive party (Communist) cabled greetings Monday to the newly-elected leaders of the Polish Workers party and advised the Soviet Communist party central committee against interference with the rights of the Polish party.

A cable addressed to Wladyslaw Gomulka, first secretary of the Polish organization, said the LPP's national executive considered the outcome of the Polish elections "a great contribution to the establishment of new and proper fraternal relationships between Communist parties."

"We express our shock at the reported attempts by the Communist party of the Soviet Union to interfere with the independent course the Polish Workers party has taken."

A copy of the cable and another brief one were sent to Moscow. The second one said the LPP believes "the Polish people must have full freedom to decide independently all matters that concern them."

Car-Bombing Victim Loses Insurance Bid

(From CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER—An insurance suit launched by Jacob Leonhard after his car was blown up on Feb. 15, 1955, was dismissed in Supreme Court.

Leonhard lost a leg as well as his car when a booby-trapped bomb exploded in his parked car.

A year later, he started suit against British Law Insurance Company, Ltd., London, Eng., and All Risk Insurance Agencies, Ltd., Vancouver, to collect for the loss of his car under a policy he took out about six months before the explosion.

K. L. Yuill applied to Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in Supreme Court chambers to have the action dismissed because it had not been proceeded with.

No one appeared for Leonhard to oppose the application.

RAINFALL RECORDS
VANCOUVER—Two records for October rainfall in Vancouver were set by last week's downpour.

During the 24 hours ending at 4:30 p.m. Saturday, 2.35 inches fell at the airport, breaking the previous 24-hour record for October of 1.77 inches, set Oct. 9, 1940.

In downtown Vancouver 3.96 inches was recorded, breaking the previous record of 3.13 inches, set Oct. 17, 1940.

Friday rainfall in Vancouver was 27 of an inch less than the all-time high of 4.23 recorded Dec. 14-15, 1923.

MERCY FLIGHT
VANCOUVER—Russell Girard, about 50, of Prince George, was in fair condition today in hospital here following an RCAF mercy flight.

Hospital officials said Mr. Girard was suffering from an abdominal illness. An RCAF Dakota, piloted by FO Bob Jasper and co-pilot Charlie Drew, arrived at Vancouver airport at 1:45 a.m., and the ill man was rushed to hospital by RCAF ambulance.

PLUNGES TO DEATH
VANCOUVER—A man who claimed he had been hearing voices plunged to his death early Monday from the fifth floor of an east end Vancouver hotel.

The victim was identified as Benjamin Dalke, a logger.

NARCOTICS CHARGE
VANCOUVER—Bail of $35,000 was set in police court for a man charged with possession of narcotics for the purpose of trafficking.

Henry Kokott, 42, was committed to stand trial in a higher court.

He was arrested late in September and police seized an ounce of heroin as evidence in the case.

Color Bar Criticized At Princess Party

*NAIROBI, Kenya (CP)—Abdul Ghafur Shiek, chairman of the Capricorn Africa Society, criticized Princess Margaret's host at a dinner party Monday night for failing to include members of Kenya's non-white races on the guest list.

A Nairobi doctor, Michael Wood, who is chairman of the CAS, an organization which aims at wiping out the color bar in east and central Africa, gave the party at his home 15 miles outside of Nairobi.

The Woods, close friends of the Princess, invited 38 European guests to the party—Margaret's first private house party in her month-long East African tour.

They had planned to have a moonlight dance after dinner but Mrs. Wood said later that Margaret did not dance because she felt tired.

But the Princess spent three hours at the party, she added, and was in "gray and bubbling form."

Today at Nakura wildly cheering African school children greeted Princess Margaret as she flew into the capital of the White Highlands.

Later she was scheduled to fly to Amboseli, the large game reserve near towering Kilimanjaro, Africa's highest mountain.

'WE WANT DUPLESSIS'

Police Disperse Milling Students

QUEBEC (CP)—Five radio cars filled with city police moved in shortly before noon today to disperse a milling, singing, placard-waving group of students marching through the downtown district.

With sirens wailing, the cars overtook the happy marchers and police asked them to break up. The students continued on their way and police concentrated on keeping traffic in order.

The students, seeking to place demands for more provincial student aid before Premier Duplessis, followed a route that led them back to the university.

The parade followed a 2½-hour demonstration on the grounds of the legislative buildings where 1,000 students gathered to urge the premier to provide more financial help for students.

Mr. Duplessis, who recently rejected federal aid to universities, quietly arrived at the legislature unnoticed by the students during the noisy demonstration. He finally sent word to the students that he was not able to receive a 12-man delegation and that he was "working for the benefit of the province and the students in particular."

At the outset of the demonstration about 1,000 Laval students massed on the grounds of the legislative buildings.

Orange Blossom Honey Tops Petal Muffins

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Rosebuds, chrysanthemums, carnations and sunflower seeds were on the luncheon menu Monday at the 11th annual American Horticultural Congress.

Some 150 delegates found a rosebud fruit cup at their luncheon plates. It consisted of a conventional fruit cup with a tiny rosebud in the centre.

Did they eat it?
"Sure," said Mrs. Evelyn Drake. "A lot of people who work around flowers make a habit of eating them."

Also on the menu: Petal muffins made with the usual ingredients, but including chrysanthemum petals. Orange blossom honey topped the muffins. Whipped-cream carnations for dessert, made with chopped carnation petals.

Celery hearts and an autumn fruit salad spread on autumn leaves and sprinkled with yew berries.

"The chrysanthemum muffins were especially good," commented Mrs. Drake, "very spicy."

Problem for the Kremlin

THE PROBLEM NOW FACING the Russians in Poland appears to be a crucial one for Kremlin policy. Poland's so-far successful effort to throw off Moscow's domination and establish its own communist state can be met in only three ways. It can be ignored by Russia—an unthinkable proposition. It can be opposed by diplomatic means—and Mr. Khrushchev's failure last weekend seems to be the answer to this approach. Or it can be met by force—and this appears to be the most likely Soviet reaction.

But that remedy itself would precipitate a whole epidemic of ills. It would advertise to all the world that the current Russian attitude of smiles, handclaps and peaceful co-existence is only that—an attitude, adopted for political purposes. It would prove that the new Moscow policy, the anti-Stalin liberalization of domestic and international behaviour, will not stand up to a vital test—that force is still the basic relationship between Russia and its "free" satellites.

There would be wider repercussions. Czechoslovakia and Hungary, already stirring with unrest, would understand the full implications of Soviet armed intervention. They would recognize that the friendly words mean nothing when the Red Army must always be the final answer.

Marshal Tito, who successfully made the break years ago, would be confirmed in his action in the eyes of all non-Russian communists. He could easily achieve a place as a leader to whom other communist states, desiring national independence might turn. Even Egypt's President Nasser would be moved to take a second look at the power whose support he is courting.

There could be even more striking effects within the Kremlin. Already Mr. Khrushchev is reported to have lost ground in the constant struggle for power that is part and parcel of the Soviet system of government. The ensuing developments might well cause violent reactions within the Moscow clique where major policy can undergo overnight reversals.

But whatever the cost it appears that Russia must hold its satellites, and particularly Poland. The current revolt cannot be allowed to succeed.

The plains of Poland have always been, militarily speaking, the Achilles heel of Russia. Not until the end of the Second World War was Russia able to place a defensive army to the west of this avenue of invasion.

Now, it will not relinquish its position easily. It will not let go of East Germany, its foremost outpost in Europe, its chief continental bargaining counter and perhaps the key to the future of the rest of Germany. And to retain East Germany it must maintain its supply lines through Poland.

Apart from the East German contact, loss of Poland or substantial weakening of its dependence on Russia would imperil the whole system of buffer states with which the communist Soviet has fenced itself off from the "capitalist" West.

In this light, the emergency meeting between Marshal Tito and top Soviet leaders a few days ago takes on new meaning. Was Tito's aid being sought, or bought, to meet the mounting crisis? Was the Yugoslav leader being warned, or coaxed, away from a resumption of his old dream of a Balkan alliance that would embrace his country, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, and perhaps others?

The Poles are a proud and tenacious nation. They have been crushed many times in the march of history, yet always they have sprung back. Today, there is no doubt that the Red Army could smash the Polish forces and replace the Gomulka regime with a puppet administration.

Such action was bad enough in the days of Stalin. Today, under the new policy, it could only be construed as an act of desperation. It could mean the beginning of the end of Russian imperialism.

Another factor may also be imposed. Peking recently is reported to have delivered what amounts to a warning to Russia not to undertake any military adventures. Russia cannot risk losing the support of the vast communist land on its south-eastern flank. This situation must play a part in any decision Moscow makes in regard to its European problem.

It is much too early yet to say that the satellite system is faltering, or that Russia faces a significant defeat. But the West will do well to watch closely the currents now manifesting themselves. Danger, as well as gain, could develop.

Pressed too hard, Russia might reply by fomenting trouble between communism and the West which would drive the communist satellites back to Russia's side. Or Moscow could produce diversionary dangers in some other quarter of the globe which would relegate the satellite's revolt to the background. Either development would vitally affect the West, and the peace of the world.

Classes for the Retarded

WHILE THE BROAD PROBLEMS of education—financing, school overcrowding and an insufficient supply of suitable university material—occupy the attention of the nation and the province, a courageous experiment in a new field is proceeding in Victoria.

This is the effort made by the Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children—which has counterparts in certain other B.C. centres—to provide some form of group training for young people unable to cope with regular school work or even remedial courses.

There are two such classes operating here. In each are a dozen children, ranging in age from 6 to 18. Under special teachers they take part in short sessions daily, one group in the morning, one in the afternoon, in premises made available to them by St. Barnabas church.

This is a task calling for unique abilities on the part of special teachers. The children concerned are not capable of meeting the demands made on the ordinary pupil, even the slow learner. But there lie within them some potentialities. The school is attempting to develop these human capacities and, after a few weeks' operation, is showing certain gains.

This is a brave concept aimed at helping a group on which little, if any, joint training has been attempted here before. Courageous parents have come together to make a place in society for young people who can never be like other children. With the co-operation of the school board, an understanding provincial government is providing per pupil finances for the classes equivalent to money spent on the education of students in elementary school.

In time the association hopes to acquire permanent and more suitable quarters for the courses—accommodation where a heartening job of rehabilitation can be undertaken more effectively for the retarded.

Progress is being made and a community which can furnish such facilities, a community which is prepared to give sympathetic acceptance and help to the children concerned, earns universal respect.

A Heavy Blow at the Enemy

WITH PROPER SCIENTIFIC caution, medical officials are making only conservative claims for the effectiveness of the Salk polio vaccine used in Canada this year. But according to a Canadian Press survey recently conducted there was less than half as much polio in the country this year as in 1955.

A cool summer and normal fluctuations in the incidence of the disease are given partial credit for this happy development. But the widespread use of the vaccine also played a part, as yet to be exactly determined. One obvious effect was that of the 435 cases recorded this year—in contrast to 867 in 1955—very few were among children who had been given the immunization, and of these nearly all were mild.

Ontario and Quebec showed only slight decreases in the number of cases, and a study of the trend over the last five years is now being made to account for this. In British Columbia, where primary grade school children were almost unanimous in attending the vaccination clinics, 66 cases were reported, compared with 163 last year. Of these only 22 were paralytic, whereas in 1955 99 cases were in this category.

These are preliminary figures but they appear to indicate a definite trend. We may take great hope from them that this killing and crippling disease will eventually be sent the way of yellow fever and diphtheria.

Down the Home Stretch

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

On the Broad Highway

HAVING recently driven a couple of thousand miles over British Columbia's highways, I can appreciate Mr. Gagliardi's problems. Truly they are daunting. Though immense sums are being spent and magnificent stretches of road are being constructed, we can hardly hope to have an adequate highway system within a dozen years and I sometimes wonder if Mr. Gagliardi's boundless energies will last that long.

One fact strikes the traveler immediately—the main traffic route across British Columbia will not be the Trans-Canada Highway, as intended, but the Southern Provincial Highway, leaving the trunk road at Hope and cutting in a straight line across the province to Alberta.

THIS probably was assured once a former government (which is commonly supposed to have done nothing about highways) built the Hope-Princeton road in that natural route to the interior identified by Governor Douglas and laid down by the original Dewdney Trail.

When the late Ernest Carson built the Hope-Princeton road he set the pattern of future transportation. Then he confirmed it by piercing the second range east of the Okanagan by the magnificent speedway across Anarchist Mountain to Grand Forks. His successor has begun to conquer the third barricade over the two appalling summits that lie between Grand Forks and Rossland.

THOUGH no man in his senses attempts to cross those summits on the existing wagon road but wisely makes a two-hour detour through the United States, this obstacle on the Canadian side cannot discourage traffic on the shortest route to the prairies.

Day and night the buses, the freight trucks and the private cars turn eastward from Hope and enter Alberta through the easy and beautiful Crow's Nest Pass. Every hour or so you will pass a bus labeled "Winnipeg." In Cranbrook you will be awakened frequently during the night by a caravan of freight trucks on their way to Vancouver or Calgary.

YET this was not supposed to be the main route to the prairies and is no part of the Trans-Canada Highway which follows the Fraser Canyon and swings to Kamloops, Revelstoke and Banff; or will do so when it is finally completed, some years hence.

I am told by competent engineers that the wrong location has been chosen for the Trans-Canada through the Rockies, roughly parallel to the CPR, and that the road under construction there will be frequently plugged with snow. However that may turn out, we may be sure that the main volume of traffic to the prairies will move across the southern route.

Mr. Gagliardi, therefore, is wise to improve it as he is doing at a few points. But he has a long way to go.

MUCH of this road is narrow, twisting and quite inadequate for heavy traffic; though the unburied traveler will find the meandering drive along the east shore of Kootenay Lake the most fascinating, perhaps, in all British Columbia. Compared to Kootenay, the lakes of Switzerland are mere puddles and the famous beauties of Italy's Lake Como not much better than a crowded slum.

However, Kootenay Lake, with its forty-minute ferry, is to be bypassed. Soon one will be able to drive straight east from Trail to Salmo, avoiding the narrow road and frightening cliffs beside the Kootenay River, avoiding Nelson also and striking directly into Creston and thence to the Crow's Nest Pass.

SINCE the bulk of traffic will use this route and will not have to cross the western arm of Kootenay Lake at Nelson to reach the ferry on the north side, I wondered why the Government is building a huge toll bridge there when the money is so desperately needed in other places, when there is still no proper highway even to Prince George, no prospect of a tolerable road out to Prince Rupert and the approaches to Vancouver from the interior are a nightmare. But no doubt Mr. Gagliardi has his reasons.

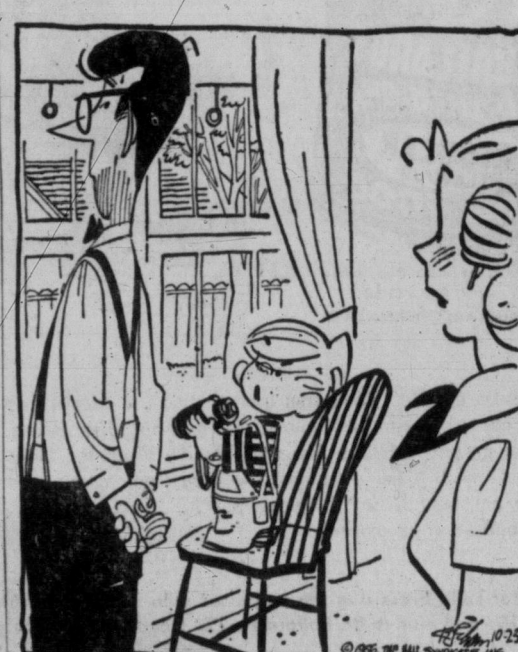

For all the notable new stretches of road here and there (the new Malahat, for example) we are a long way from a highway system, while traffic is increasing unbelievably, every village along the crowded Southern Provincial route is becoming a town, every town a city and anyone who travels for pleasure should avoid the main route altogether.

IT is no use saying that the sensible traveler can take his time on the new highways. He is swept along in a river of cars, few of them moving at less than an illegal speed of sixty miles an hour. The new highways are built for transportation solely, for speed, efficiency, discomfort and danger. They are what the public seems to want and the public is welcome to them.

Just thirty-five years ago I drove over Anarchist Mountain on a trail hardly fit for a pack horse, and a few years later rode on horseback from Princeton to Hope in a laborious week.

A few days ago I covered both these high passes in a few hours, I admired two marvels of engineering and remembered my old friend, Ernest Carson, who achieved them, but I knew no moment of peace or enjoyment until I turned off the pavement and jogged along, at about thirty, on some rough gravel road leading into a British Columbia now seldom seen by the public and almost forgotten in the age of progress, not politics.

As Our Readers See It

Wood and Inflation

I notice in the Times of Oct. 18—front page—the Premier while talking about consumer goods asked: "Where are these shortages that make for inflation?" I would without hesitation say "firewood".

I ordered early in July two cords of firewood in one cord lots. One cord was delivered July 14 and I paid 10 dollars. The second cord was not delivered until September 22 and I paid 14 dollars. Guess this is inflation in a hurry.

Firewood should not be a shortage in the city of Victoria. It's all put down to the lumber mills using all the waste. But they should be approached to cut an adequate supply of firewood to meet the requirements of the wood users.

They were only too glad to ship this waste wood to Victoria a few years back when it could be bought for five and six dollars for two cords.

A wood board was functioning in wartime and it would not be amiss to have one again to arrange supply.

ARTHUR L. DAY

Fuel Beyond Price

I have heard that the city has given certain fuel dealers the right to cut wood on city property in the Sooke area in order to alleviate the fuel shortage.

However if the dealers are going to go all out and make a killing by charging $18 a cord for wood they do not even have to pay stumpage on I cannot see that this will help anyone except the fuel dealers. Certainly those on low income can not afford to pay $18 per cord and those on higher income will not need to buy it as they can install oil furnaces or coal stokers.

If the City Fathers really want to help out in this fuel shortage why not hire a good foreman and put city crews in to get out the wood, and haul it at cost, not double the cost as proposed by the dealers?

If this is to be undertaken at all then consider well before making it just a fare.

Not Incompatible

We would like to reply to your correspondent Marian N. Sherman, who in the Times of Oct. 12 requests the views of the youth of a decade or so ago toward the church.

First, contrary to the suggestion in her letter, we have not found knowledge and religion incompatible. A higher education in the sciences and humanities does not necessarily result in a denial of the Christian faith; on the contrary, as our knowledge widens, so our conception of God is enriched. We have tested our beliefs, and in the laboratory of our experience they have proved true.

Second, although your correspondent infers that fellowship is not to be found in the church, we wish to state that wherever we have lived we have found fellowship of a highly satisfying nature in the church. While not confining our social contacts to church members, we have nevertheless established many enduring friendships there.

Thirdly, while we agree that youth wants leaders with sociological training, and buildings where all sorts of activities can be carried on, we feel the church is making a sincere effort to meet these needs, although hampered by lack of resources. We acknowledge our own debt to the Sunday schools, youth groups, and summer camps, which contributed to our mental, physical, social and spiritual development.

If there is a lack of interest in the church among young people today, it is due, in our opinion, to two factors: the constant flow of excitement and stimulation bombarding young people from the films and television, setting up false standards for them and blurring their sense of values; and to the lack of trained leaders in the church.

Most churches simply do not have the funds either to finance the training of leaders or to offer adequate pay for their services. Hence leadership is dependent on those who are willing to give their talents and their time.

Finally, we would like to mention the results of a scientific study of modern American marriage carried out by Dr. E. W. Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, and Dr. P. Wallin of Stanford University. This survey is reported in the book "Courtship, Engagement and Marriage," published in 1953 by J. Lippincott & Co., and the results indicate that couples who attend church regularly have twice the chance for successful marriage as non-churchgoers. The Burgess-Wallin study clearly shows that religion is a powerful factor in preserving marriage bonds; and that one of the most effective ways a parent can prepare a child for marriage is to provide him with early and continuing religious training.

These are some of the reasons why we would recommend church affiliation to any young person today who is seeking a happy and meaningful life.

THE OTTAWA SCENE

By VICTOR MACKIE

In 'Difficult Circumstances'

THE ACTING LEADER of the Progressive Conservative party Hon. Earl Rowe was anything but optimistic when he was questioned on the immediate future of his political party during a televised press conference here. Replying to questions, he made no attempt to paint a rosy picture.

The retirement of the party's leader, George Drew, had left the Conservatives in "difficult circumstances." There are many politicians across Canada who would agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Rowe's forebodings. Certainly there are Conservatives who privately have acknowledged that the sudden retirement of Mr. Drew just as he appeared to be making gains has left the party under a severe handicap as it prepares for the federal contest. But they would not say so publicly.

Mr. Rowe however was blunt when he replied to a reporter's question. He indicated that he saw little likelihood of the coming leadership convention improving the party's chances of winning the next election.

"I don't think this convention can improve our position. We are in difficult circumstances due to the ill health of George Drew," was his forthright reply.

Hopeful

The Acting Tory leader conceded that under the leadership of Mr. Drew the Conservative party had made progress. He hoped that the party could retain that strength but expressed the belief that the Conservatives' chances of increasing it were better before the convention was called. He added, "I hope we will not lose ground because of the situation we are in." One reporter observed that he did not appear very hopeful. Mr. Rowe came back with a retort that did not remove the air of pessimism. His reply: "I am more hopeful than a lot of people."

Not a Candidate

Incidentally Mr. Rowe emphatically declared that he would not let his name stand as a candidate for the party leadership at the convention, scheduled for the week of Dec. 10 at Ottawa. He also viewed it as unlikely that a candidate would be named as leader from outside the party's parliamentary ranks.

Other Side

George Hees, the Conservative campaigner, who has been seeking to spread the Tory gospel across Canada, is much more optimistic than his acting leader. Completing his recent western tour Mr. Hees, the Conservative M.P. for Toronto Broadview, said he was convinced John Diefenbaker as leader of the Conservatives would be able to rally to the party's banner "all those who fear the growing dictatorial tendencies of the present government." He added, "I am convinced that John will lead us to victory next year."

Reaction

Le Devoir, an influential French-language newspaper published in Montreal, does not take kindly to the suggestion that John Diefenbaker may be the next national leader of the Conservatives. In its editorial page recently it said Mr. Diefenbaker would not be acceptable to French-speaking Canada. It said the Prince Albert lawyer, MP does not speak French and has not made an attempt to learn the language.

It charged that the Saskatchewan Conservative did not understand the French-Canadian point of view. "Hansard is full of instances where Mr. Diefenbaker has indicated his anti-Quebec and anti-French Canadian views," the paper said.

Dilemma

The reaction of French Canadians to the suggestion that Mr. Diefenbaker may be selected national leader of the Conservatives has led members of the party in Ontario and Quebec, not pro-Diefenbaker, to try desperately to wreck the "Diefenbaker for leadership" movement. They are looking for an alternative choice. The man they appear agreed upon is Donald Fleming the MP for Toronto Eglinton.

But Diefenbaker appears far out in front in the leadership race. If he wins what will the Conservatives do about Quebec? Will the party under Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership set out to court its voters as Mr. Drew did, or will the Conservatives decide to campaign for support in Ontario and western Canada on a platform that is not designed to win French-Canadian support?

Future

Liberals are keenly interested in Ross Thatcher's political future. Members of the party in prominent places point out that it is important he win re-election. It will not be conducive to others crossing the floor of the House to sit with the Liberals, if the Moose Jaw ex-CCF'er and ex-Independent goes down to defeat in the federal contest next summer. Party members have been encouraging him to seek the nomination in a seat where he would be reasonably sure of success.

Interview

The close friendship that exists between Mr. Thatcher and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair is well known. But it was carrying that friendship to an extreme when the new Liberal from Moose Jaw, made a forecast during an interview in Vancouver, that Mr. Sinclair would soon rise to the post of prime minister. There were raised eyebrows in cabinet circles over Thatcher's quoted comment that Mr. St. Laurent would "ride the election and retire six months after" leaving the government in the hands of Finance Minister Harris or Fisheries Minister Sinclair. The latter he described as the "most brilliant" man in the House of Commons. "He'll be prime minister within 10 years anyway." Others asked, what about Mr. Pearson?

More Than a Super Robot

IF politics makes strange bedfellows, I hope it isn't perverting the figure too much to suggest it creates unusual divorces.

You might have agreed had you listened to Friday night's Victoria College assembly speech by Mr. Ray Williston, recently separated from the educational career he espoused a quarter of a century ago at the local Normal School.

Mr. Williston, who is now minister of lands and forests and no longer minister of education, does not seem to want a decree absolute. He has ceased to be officially wedded to schools, his first love. But it won't be surprising if he keeps humming "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

The assumption seemed to be at the college assembly that Mr. Williston had transferred from the field in which he was closely associated with the teaching processes to one in which he is identified with industry.

It seems to me he'll probably carry the influence of the former along with him. And it seems to me, too, that if he can extend his understanding of the purposes of education to industry, a very substantial gain will be made.

WHAT INDUSTRY WANTS

Industry wants more university-trained experts. It has to have them if it is to develop as it should in this high-speed age. The minister made that point clear with a simple analogy.

The man directing the operator of a bulldozer, he pointed out, has to be able to give quick and good direction to the person manipulating the equipment. And he has to do it much faster than the director who passed out orders to the forerunner of the bulldozer jockey, the man with the team of horses and the scraper. The bulldozer completes one job in a fraction of the time needed by the horse team, and the person riding it has to have instructions for the next project, or next process, immediately.

The technical director, in other words, has to be right on the bit. And the man with university training, and the mental stimulation expected of higher education, is wanted to fill the bill.

If you visualize that process and nothing more, you'll find a chill running up your spine. To me that's frightening. I imagine an automaton running a machine in response to stimuli provided by a technician skilled in the craft of manipulating the automaton.

It could happen. And we're told it does happen in certain parts of the world.

But, again, if I see the former minister of education in proper perspective, it isn't his idea of what should happen or what will happen if he has anything to say about it.

The former minister, by his assessment, knows that the man on the bulldozer isn't an automaton and the man who directs him isn't a mechanical brain. Both of them are persons. He'll want the director and the workman to appreciate that point.

For that reason I don't think he'll ever be satisfied with any move from industry or other sources to produce the skilled technician educated only in a specialized scientific field.

KEEP SAYING IT

That's what he was saying, if my ears were open, last Friday. I hope he keeps saying it.

Industry and business have every reason to call on the universities to produce more and more technical experts. They're needed and needed badly in a country developing as quickly as Canada.

But it will be a very sad day indeed if this search and demand for barrier-breakers in special fields becomes so obsessive that it diverts the university brain into too narrow channels.

Of course we want bridge builders, atom-crackers, pure and applied scientists. But we want each of them to be more than bridge builder, atom-cracker or scientist.

We want them to see beyond what is collectively called manpower and the working force. We want them to recognize that the mass of manpower is made up of individual men. We want them to encourage the men to have their dreams, to gaze at their visions, to know they are the pulsing, feeling and thinking ingredients of humanity.

I can do without master robots press-buttoning minor robots if the robots are to be conversion jobs from human beings. Maybe, by automation—and I'm certainly not against it—we might be able to produce bigger, better, shinier cars. If the price is the mechanization of man, I'd just as soon walk.

Many persons ask me what Bell's palsy is. It is a weakening of the muscles on one side of the face, due usually to something wrong with the seventh cranial nerve which supplies the muscles. It comes out of the skull through a little conduit near the ear. Oftentimes the persons tell of a recent exposure of the side of the face to a cold wind, but in many cases we physicians do not know what the cause was. Sometimes it was an injury due to a tiny stroke up in the brain, and sometimes it was due to something that went wrong in the little canal through which the nerve comes out from the brain. Perhaps it was a virus that attacked the nerve.

If a person is fortunate, the paralysis will be slight, and it will disappear in a few months. In some cases in which the nerve is badly injured it will have to grow out again, and this will take many months. Sometimes recovery is never quite complete, so that always thereafter a physician can detect a weakening and lowering of one corner of the mouth. In rare cases the paralysis does not clear up, and then an operation can be performed to lift up the weakened corner of the mouth and to fasten it to the bone just below the eye on the affected side.

Occasionally, a person who has had one Bell's palsy will get another. Only once in my life did I see a man who had five attacks. He certainly had bad luck. His only good fortune was that he recovered well from all of the spells.

In those cases in which, with a paralysis of one side of the face, there come marked changes in the person's character and ability, I suspect that the injury was deep in the brain and not out in the nerve. Oftentimes

Red Puppets Slipping From Kremlin Control

LONDON (AP)—Belief grew in western Europe today that the Soviet Communist Party has suffered a sharp decline in power and prestige in the dramatic political changes in Poland.

The Poles' insistence on a "national" development of their own brand of communism may foreshadow a breakup of Russia's iron political control over its eastern bloc.

Comment on the events in Poland has emphasized that the Polish leadership remains Communist. But the national development of the Communist ideology along lines exemplified by President Tito's party in Yugoslavia seems preferable, in the western view, to the system of totally puppet parties.

Moscow Radio broadcast a non-committal report on what happened in the Friday and Saturday sessions of the Polish United Workers' Communist party central committee, making no mention of the political background. It carefully prefaced the title "comrade" to the name of Wladyslaw Gomulka, branded and jailed as a Titoist in the Stalin era and now the new first secretary—boss—of the Polish party. Apparently Moscow wants the world to believe that it regards Gomulka as a Communist in good standing.

London's Communist paper, The Daily Worker, in a tone of alarm, says:

"Every Communist or socialist, inside or outside Poland, must be conscious that class enemies are watching the development of events. These enemies are hoping that divisions in the popular ranks may give them an opportunity for a reactionary comeback."

Bid Opposed By Steel Users

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition to higher tariff protection proposed by Canada's steel industry was expressed Monday before the tariff board both by Canadian steel users and Britain's steel producers.

The Canadian Institute of Steel Construction, Inc., said an increase in tariffs to the extent sought by Canada's basic steel manufacturers would put firms making products from steel in a less competitive position with foreign producers.

The institute, which represents companies that make items used in building bridges, heavy construction, pressure tanks and so on, said the Canadian steel industry can supply only about one-third the structural steel and about one-half the steel plate used in Canada.

Canine Roaming To End in Esquimalt

SPCA to Take Over Catching, Impounding 'To Protect the Dogs From Themselves'

A by-law to "protect dogs from themselves" will be prepared shortly by Esquimalt council.

Changes in the present by-law, authorized by councillors Monday night, will turn over municipal dog-catching, impounding and licensing to the SPCA.

Main point in the by-law amendment states "no dog is permitted to be at large unless accompanied by an adult or other responsible person." "At large" is defined as "not on the premises of the owner." "This will protect dogs against themselves," the SPCA said in a letter to council.

IMPOUNDED

Licensed and unlicensed dogs will be impounded by the SPCA if caught roaming the streets, although licensed dogs "out for an airing" probably will be by-passed, council said.

Licence fees will jump from $2 to $3 for male dogs, and from $3 to $5 for females.

"This would encourage owners of female dogs to have them spayed, which would be a very good thing," said Reeve A. C. Wurtele.

Fee for spayed females will be $3.

SPCA GETS FEES

Dog licence fees, an estimated $900 per year, will be turned over to the society.

Operation of the SPCA pound at 111 Wilson Street will be augmented by charging owners a $2 fee to reclaim their dogs, plus $1 a day board.

Proposed changes in the by-law also would allow a maximum of three dogs to a house.

Cat Population Control Moves Ahead

Headway in the "scientific control of the cat population" has been made in the past year, officials reported at the annual meeting of the Cats Protection League.

Homes were found for 300 cats, and most of 200 lost or found cats were returned to their owners, and cases of abandonment, cruelty and neglect were investigated.

Mrs. M. Munroe was elected president of the league.

Other officers are Mrs. W. Wilds and Mrs. I. D. Woods, vice-presidents; Mrs. H. M. Kerswell, secretary, and James Nicholl, treasurer.

War Amputees To Give Away New Car Nov. 9

Victoria Branch, War Amputations of Canada, will present a new car to someone attending a dance Nov. 9 at Crystal Garden.

The group is engaged in a fund drive which is expected to earn $5,000 toward construction of a clubroom and memorial centre.

Tickets for the dance are on sale at Roaf Motors, Hudson's Bay Company and Crystal Garden.

VERDIER POINT BEACH TAKEN OVER BY B.C.

Appropriation of the sandy beach at Verdier Point adjoining the Mill Bay Indian Reserve on Saanich Inlet for the "use, recreation and enjoyment of the public" has been authorized by the B.C. cabinet.

The beach has been used for bathing by the public for a number of years.

A spokesman for the Lands Department said the area surrounding the beach would not be developed as a park site.

Year-Round Parking, Fair Area Studied for Knoll Behind Arena

Victoria public works committee will study a suggestion that a year-round parking area and spring fairground be constructed behind Memorial Arena where at present there is a useless rocky hill.

City engineer J. C. Garnett said Monday it might be cheaper to fill the whole area to the level of the rocks and make a high plateau which would be reached via a ramp.

The question of claiming the Public works committee asked Mr. Garnett to report back on the matter.

This new kind of car called Ford hugs a rough road, loves a tight turn. It irons out the bumps, makes every mile of driving millpond-smooth. It takes the tightest curves in its stride, clings to the road like a coat of paint. You get the feel of a big, big car... and that's just what Ford is—the biggest car in the low-price field! It's the heaviest Ford ever built—from 50 to 200 pounds heavier than in 1956! And that means a smoother ride, a steadier ride, a quieter ride and a safer ride! Nothing compares with the '57 Ford's Even-Keel ride... for smoothness... for ease of handling... for level cornering... for the solid, reassuring feel of safety! It's the ride sensation of the new-car year—a demonstration drive will prove it!

Ford's wonderful Even-Keel ride starts with the new 'Inner Ford'—proved in action! A revolutionary new frame sweeps out between the wheels and dips down for a lower centre of gravity. You're actually "cradled" in the protection of the frame, with its five structural steel cross-members! There's 23% more torsional rigidity than ever before.

New 4-way Angle-Poised ball-joint front suspension steps over the bumps rather than into them. New rear springs, mounted outside the frame, give wide-stance steadiness. New steering has a built-in "road sense" that's truly new! Literally hundreds of new design ideas contribute to the miracle of Even-Keel ride... but the proof's in the riding. MARCEL MOULDS A BIG 'O'

Victoria Cougar goalkeeper Marcel Pelletier moulds the zero sign after blanking Calgary Stampede, 1-0, Monday night in a Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena. ## WHAT'S THE SCORE?

BY

Denny Boyd

No matter what else happens this season, the Western Hockey League is going to be an improved source of entertainment.

Better hockey? Remains to be seen. A tight race? Who can tell? Cheaper hot dogs? Not likely. Scotty Morrison? Yes, indeed. The Calgary Stampede can play with engraved souvenir pucks and the prairie clubs can stoke up on former National Hockey League stars.

But if there is one thing that can haul the league out of the dollar doldrums and keep the fans' minds off their income tax problems, it is this curly-haired little squirt called Scotty Morrison, who, as the league's referee-in-chief, is charged with putting something in the official whistles besides those little wooden peas.

If Scotty has an enemy in the WHL, it is someone who dislikes small babies and stray puppies; someone suffering from a chronic sour taste.

There was something about this compact little (5', 4") bundle of business that caught the imagination of WHL fans when he joined this league three years ago.

Perhaps it was his size. He had to raise his arms to rest his elbows on the time-keeper's bench.

Perhaps it was his looks. With that curly hair, the boyish face and the wide eyes, he looked like a choir-boy at a crap game when he mingled with hockey players.

But more likely it was his attitude and his sincere application to his job that hit the fans and marked him for the big time.

Morrison skated at all times with conscientious hustle. He was always on top of the play and he made his calls with such profound authority that few fans (not even the Victoria critics) dared to challenge him.

But, like all good things in sport, Scotty was not destined to stick around a minor league. Up in the air-conditioned offices of the National Hockey League, they were keeping book on Morrison, because a capable referee is a dang sight harder to come by than a 30-goal forward.

So Scotty went up to the big time. For the first year, he refereed in every city in the league but a good job in Toronto forced him to curtail his activities, to working the lines in Toronto, Montreal and Detroit in his second year.

Scotty was back in Victoria last night and he was working with a pencil instead of a whistle, scouting referee Vern Bussey, who was Scotty's lines partner in Toronto last year.

"Yes, indeed," Scotty answered accommodatingly, "You notice a vast difference when you go up to the NHL. First of all, everything is faster up there and you must gear yourself accordingly. Another thing, the players up there know the score. The team captains know that rule-book thoroughly and if you make a mistake of 12 inches on a face-off, they know about it."

"One thing I will always remember about the NHL is the help and fair treatment they give a green official when he is breaking in. You might think the players and coaches would be on the prowl for the rookie referee but, on the contrary, everyone goes out of his way to make things easy for a green guy. They help you out in that first year, as long as you apply yourself to your job, but if they don't figure you are producing in your second year, they get on you. Which is fair enough."

Scotty left soon after that, his notebook full of observations and, as he walked out of the Arena with the crowd, people could be heard saying in awed whispers, "Hey, there's Scotty."

And they don't hardly talk about referees that way any more.

Hoop Openers Nov. 1; Yeamans Heads Brass

Opening games in the 1956-57 city basketball season will be played Nov. 1, it was decided at a meeting of the Victoria Basketball Commission Monday night.

Arrangements for interlocking schedules with the Saanich and Suburban Basketball League and the Victoria Sunday School Basketball League are expected to give city teams a greater amount of competition this season.

No closing date for entries was set. Entries may be made to secretary Garry Horne at 3-0171.

Wally Yeamans was named as chairman of the commission during the meeting.

Pat Horgan and Jay Gable were elected to the publicity committee, and Bert Holcomb and Conn Forseth were chosen to arrange schedules. Hank Castillo was returned as district representative.

Bob Hurdle and Roy Bishop will be in charge of liaison with the Sunday school loop, and Forseth and Yeamans will work with Saanich officials on schedules.

DOUG ANDERSON

Anderson Climbs Up Point Ladder

Victoria Cougars' Doug Anderson moved into undisputed possession of third place in the Western Hockey League scoring race today after picking up an assist Monday night in the Cats' 1-0 victory over Calgary.

Anderson now has five goals and six assists for 11 points, two less than Seattle Americans' duo of Ray Kinasewich and Guyle Fielder, who have 13 points apiece.

Kinasewich and fourth-place Jackie McLeod, of Vancouver, lead in goals with eight each, while Fielder leads in assists with 10.

Only other Cougar in the top ten is playing-coach Colin Kilburn, who picked up an assist himself Monday to move into a four-way tie for sixth place with eight points.

Leading goaltender is Winnipeg's Ed Johnston, who has turned aside 90 shots in three games for a .946 average.

Top 10 scorers follow:

Player	G	A	Pts
Kinasewich, Seattle	8	5	13
Fielder, Seattle	8	10	18
Anderson, Victoria	5	6	11
McLeod, Vancouver	8	3	11

Eskis Clinch First Place; Stamps Help

Blue Bombers Upset; Lions Snowed Under

By The Canadian Press

From Edmonton Eskimos' standpoint, Calgary Stampede couldn't have picked a better time to put together two victories in a row for the first time in the Western Interprovincial Football Union season.

Led by quarterback Ronnie Knox, the Stamps defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 25-17 Saturday and took the measure of Saskatchewan Roughriders 29-19 at home Monday night to ease the way for the Eskimos to clinch first place for the third straight season.

With Calgary knocking off any threat to the Eskimos' lead, all Edmonton had to do was beat British Columbia Lions Monday night. The Grey Cup champions did that easily, crushing the Lions 54-13 before 15,000 at Edmonton. It was the last game of the season for B.C.

The schedule winds up Saturday night with Eskimos at Winnipeg and Stampede at Regina.

Eskimos now have an 11-4 record, Riders 9-6 and Bombers 8-7, and the only doubtful spot in the final standings is second place. Another Saskatchewan loss to Calgary and a Bomber win could put Winnipeg into second place on points-for-and-against average.

LIONS OUT OF REACH

Stampede, with a 4-11 mark, are doomed to last place, unable to catch Lions' 6-10 record even with a third successive win Saturday.

The two-game total-points WFLU semifinal will pit Saskatchewan against Winnipeg for a third straight year, no matter the outcome Saturday. The games are scheduled Nov. 3 and 5.

At Edmonton Monday night, the powerful ground attack of the split-T Eskimos and an occasional pass play to keep the defense honest were too much for the weakened Lions, who played without Americans Al Pollard and Steve Palmer.

Quarterback Jackie Parker was brilliant, stepping around end on option plays for two touchdowns, one 29 yards and another 21, and throwing a 25-yard touchdown pass to Rollie Miles.

Fullback Johnny Bright, who with record-setting Normie Kwong led the Edmonton ground gaining, scoring three touchdowns. Kwong got one, as did halfback Earl Lindley.

VEREB CATCH BRILLIANT

Lions got all their points in the second quarter, Gustafson breaking out of a swarm of tacklers on a pass play to run six yards to the goal line for one touchdown and passing 40 yards to Ed Vereb in the end for the other. Vereb made a brilliant, diving catch on the play. Tony Teresa was successful on one of his convert attempts.

Eskimos rolled up 418 yards on the ground, with Kwong adding more than 100 yards to the record 1,312 he reached last weekend.

At Calgary, the Cowboys put on a brilliant two-way performance.

Fullback Earl Lunsford led the scoring with two touchdowns, while Knox got two singles. Lynn Bottoms got the other Calgary major.

Ken Carpenter, Frank Trippucka and Ron Adams scored the Saskatchewan touchdowns.

Spencer won his place with this year's squad almost in the first few minutes after he stepped on the court for the Globetrotters' opening practice of the season. Owner coach Abe Saperstein, looking over the new crop of rookies, immediately singled him out for further attention.

The former Maryland State star was soon working with the regulars and it appears he's due for a long stay with the colored court magicians. Owing a good turn of speed, great scoring talent and a fine all-around game, Spencer also handles a basketball as if it were an educated orange in the manner of old-time Trotter greats.

Spencer and his fun-loving team-mates may not have an easy time of it against the Surfriders. The Hawaiians are reported to be a fast squad which can give their more-toughened travelling mates a rough battle on their better nights.

Adding spice to Tuesday's program will be the appearance of a group of top-flight vaudeville artists who will perform prior to the game and during the half-time intermission.

Associated Press also show that Washington's Camillo Pascual allowed the most home runs in the junior circuit, 32 in 189 innings. That tied him with Freddie Hutchinson, who yielded 32 in 221 frames with Detroit in 1948.

Bill Wright, of Baltimore, proved to be the toughest American League pitcher to get to for a home run. The Orioles' southpaw was solved for only seven in 175 innings.

In the senior circuit, Cincinnati's Hal Jeffcoat, a converted outfielder, was stung when it came to giving up "gophers." Jeffcoat, who made the transition to the bound in 1954, allowed just 12 homers in 171 frames.

Runner-up to Roberts was Brooklyn's Don Newcombe, who threw 33 home runs in 268 innings. Bob Rush of Chicago Cubs was third with 31 "gopher" serves, followed by teammate Warren Hacker, 28.

Kansas City's Art Ditmar ranked second in the home runs-off listings in the American League with 30 in 252 innings. Chuck Stobbs of Washington was third with 29, followed by Steve Grozek and Paul Foytack of Detroit, tied for fourth with 25 each.

Stampede's Blanked, 1-0; Pelletier Earns Shutout

Victoria 1, Calgary 0

By DENNY BOYD

A hockey club that has lost two straight games by one-goal margins isn't going to quibble about quality when it comes their time to win one by the odd goal.

And thus it was that the Victoria Cougars studiously avoided reference to the nature of the goal that gave them a 1-0 victory over Calgary Stampede Monday night at Memorial Arena.

The debatable goal came about early in the game, early enough that the Stampede didn't raise too much of a hue and cry about it. But as the game wore on, the goal became bigger and bigger.

It was shortly over the two-minute mark when Doug Anderson started a rush up the centre of the ice. As Anderson hit the Calgary blue-line, coach Colin Kilburn was two hops and a big leap over the line ahead of him but neither of the officials, referee Vern Bussey or linesman John Smith saw him.

Kilburn, while he was happy to snap a three-game losing streak, could only wonder at the vagaries of fate.

"Sure, we won it," he said. "But we played two better games on the prairies and lost them both. How do you figure it?"

Arriving home only five hours before game-time from a road trip that saw them play seven games in 10 days, the Cougars were battered in the last period but they dug in and held on in the face of an all-out Calgary offensive that reached a thwarted peak in the last three minutes of the game.

At 17:26, with Calgary pressing, Bulloch was called for falling on the puck in a hair-line decision. Kilburn, Doug Anderson, Bill Dobbey and Bill Davidson, checking with frantic desperation held on until Bulloch returned and Kilburn used three defencemen to counter Stampede strategy that saw Bassen pulled for an extra forward with 25 seconds left.

In the last three minutes, there were four teeth-grinding face-offs in the Cougar end but Stampede were unable to beat Pelletier and the fly-paper checking of the Cougars.

Pelletier was slashed across the ankle in the pre-game warm-up by Bill Dobbey in an accident for which Pelletier took full responsibility. But while he suffered some pain during the game, he tossed everything back in the worried faces of the Stampede and finished the night with 33 saves.

KING TO HOUND DOG IN ONE SHORT YEAR

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Len Casanova, coach of the University of Oregon football team which was beaten 21-7 by Stanford Saturday, was hanged in effigy from a tree here Monday.

"Cas, you ain't nothin' but a hound dog," a sign on the effigy proclaimed.

The dummy hung from the same tree where a similar effigy was hanged last year. It is becoming known as effigy tree around the campus.

After last year's hanging, Casanova was crowned "King of the Campus" at a rally intended to show student support.

INVITATION TOURNEY HERE

Maureen Main Shuttle Hope

Maureen Bray, holder of the city women's singles crown, will be one of Victoria's main hopes to collect a title when the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club stages its annual Victoria Invitational Badminton Tournament Nov. 3 and 4.

Also holder of the Lower Island and VLTCB championships, Miss Bray is rated one of the outstanding singles players on the Pacific coast and is expected to make a strong bid for new honors in the invitational meet.

Tournament officials, hoping to have a starry field for Victoria's first major shuttle event of the season, have sent out invitations to the leading players in western Canada, Washington and Oregon and anticipate a near-record entry in the two-day meet.

Washed out of two dates over the weekend because of the weather, the teams received a go-ahead signal from the parks department today.

The Tars trail first-place Oak Bay Drakes by four points and have two games remaining. A win tonight will put them out of reach of the Vamps, who must win all three of their remaining games to catch up.

Two top teams meet in a two-game, total-point series to decide the league's representative in the Western Canadian final to be played here against either Winnipeg or Fort William.

Former city doubles champion Eric Hibbertson and Len Tolson of the VLTCB could be Victoria's strongest entry in the men's doubles and each rates as a dark-horse threat in the chase for the men's singles crown.

Tourney officials expect to receive the first entries from out-of-town shuttle experts later this week.

THE HAGEN STORY

Tom Taught Me How to Dress

One of the most colorful figures in the world of golf was Walter Hagen. Now, with the aid of Margaret Seaton Heck he has written his amazing life story. Because of world-wide popularity and the fact that he played in the city, the Times takes pleasure in presenting the Hagen biography.

Chapter 3

I played a lot of golf during those five years I was assistant to Andrew Christy at the Country Club of Rochester, N.Y.

Andrew Christy, Alf Campbell, who was pro at the Oak Hill Club in Rochester, and I went to Buffalo for a few practice rounds prior to the National Open held there in 1912. I got in one round, a 73, much lower than either of the other two could manage. When time for the Open rolled around, however, Andy decided I should stay at home and look after the pro shop while he played in the Open.

He did promise me then as a reward for staying home and working that I could go to Toronto and play in the Canadian Open which was scheduled after Buffalo.

However, I was in Buffalo long enough to carry away one big impression: how a real professional golfer must dress. For it was there I saw Tom Anderson, Jr., a brother to Willie, winner of the American Open Championship in 1901, 1903, 1904, and 1905.

Right then, I was far more impressed with Tom's clothes than I was with Willie's record. Tom had class! His outfit just about knocked my eyes out. His shirt was pure white silk with bright red, blue, yellow and black stripes. His immaculate white flannel pants had the cuffs turned up just once. If he'd rolled 'em twice, he'd have been a hick.

He wore a red bandanna knotted casually around his neck and a loud plaid cap on his head. His white buckskin shoes had thick red rubber soles and sported the widest white laces any two shoes could carry. I decided right then to copy that outfit from white buckskins to bandanna.

When Andy Christy returned from Buffalo (he didn't come close to winning), he helped me get lined up for Toronto. I didn't win. George Sargent won the new champion and J. M. Barnes the runner-up.

Named Club Professional at 19

There was one bright spot in that tournament for me. I finished one stroke ahead of Alex Smith, the grand old Scotsman who had won the National Open in 1906 with a score of 295 for 72 holes, breaking 300 for the first time in the history of golf in the United States. He'd won again in 1910.

Andrew Christy was leaving the Country Club of Rochester to accept the head pro job at the Equinox Club in Manchester, Vermont. Beekman Little, chairman of the greens committee and Thistle Club member, had the final decision on who would take over and he made my appointment definite.

So in 1912 I became pro and I asked George Christy, my former fellow caddy and baseball pal, to be my assistant. I gave my dad a job as greens-keeper, too. Here I was—19 years old, a real pro with an assistant, a salary of approximately $1,200 for eight months of the year and a chance to make extra cash by giving lessons at two dollars an hour.

Considered Outside Social Sphere

I also collected a fee of $150 a month per set for keeping 200 sets of clubs clean during the season. Also through the winter we'd make clubs in the pro shop for sale during the summer. I really felt important. I'd come a long way from that job as a caddy in 1900 at 10 cents an hour.

I was big and strong—almost six feet tall and around 175 in weight—and plenty healthy. I didn't smoke and I'd never taken a drink. In fact I never smoked a cigarette or took a drink until after I was 26 years old and had left Rochester.

I was a pro with a good job. Members of the club liked to play with me and treated me as a friend, but I still did not feel that I could walk in the front door of the club house to hoist a post-round glass or to enjoy a steak dinner. Rochester, like all other places where the game was popular, considered the pro, the paid golfer, as someone outside the social sphere.

I had broken that rule once with the help of a member, Mr. Harry Strong. I was about nine at the time and had caddied many rounds of golf for him. He reached the finals in a tournament and was in a play-off with Mr. J. C. Powers. He hired me again, but for an unusual job.

First Caddy Inside Exclusive Club

He took another caddy along with him when he teed off and sent me inside the club house to Herman, the bartender. I was to meet the two players at the second hole with a shaker of cocktails. That first shaker the two shared equally. I scurried back to Herman for a refill. At the fourth green I hid flat on my tummy in a nearby ditch waiting for them to arrive. This time, after their green shots and putts, Mr. Strong generously insisted that his opponent imbibe most of the liquid refreshment.

I followed this procedure for the entire match—dashing to the club house bar for a refill in the shaker, then scuttling back to meet the players on alternate holes. In spite of my efforts and Mr. Strong's hospitality, Mr. Powers won the match. By the time they had reached the last two holes they were both spraying their shots all over the course.

However, the play-off was most important to me because it gave me the unusual opportunity of seeing the inside of the beautiful and exclusive club house of the Country Club of Rochester. No other caddy had been able to wangle that!

Tomorrow—Hagen plays his first U.S. Open in 1913, the day that Francis Quimet made golfing history.

Habs Call Guy Rousseau

MONTREAL (BUP)—The Montreal Canadiens, who started the season with 16 veterans of last year's Stanley Cup champion team, today called up their second rookie within a week.

Latest to be promoted to the National Hockey League squad is little Guy Rousseau, 140-pound leftwinger of the Montreal Royals. Coach Toe Blake was expected to use Rousseau on his third line in place of veteran Floyd Curry, who suffered injured ribs in last Saturday's game against New York. If Curry is unable to play tomorrow night in New York, Blake said he planned to move leftwinger Claude Provost to the right side and play Rousseau.

In the first game of the year, the Canadiens lost Henri Richard for an estimated three weeks, when he collided with Boston's Leo Babine and suffered partially torn ligaments in the right knee.

Newk's Woes Don't Worry Brooks' Brass

BROOKLYN (AP)—The news that Don Newcombe blames his poor world series pitching performances on a sore arm brought little sympathy today from Brooklyn Dodgers' brass.

"He says he has a bad arm," observed vice president Buzby Bavasi, "and that he also had one during the series. All I know is that April is a long way off and this should make him easier to sign."

Newcombe said in Japan Monday that he hurt the arm in the final game of the National League race. In addition to being battered out in both his world series starts against New York Yankees, Newcombe has failed to last in two starts during the Dodgers' current tour of the Orient.

Anyway, Lions Led in Fans

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia Lions of the Western Inter-Provincial Football Union broke their own Canadian attendance record as they finished the home schedule at Empire Stadium on Saturday night.

In eight league games, Lions had 208,795 customers, some 11,000 more than the 197,589 they drew to set a Canadian record last year.

Largest crowd this season was 30,374 who watched Edmonton Eskimos beat Lions 18-0. Average attendance was 26,100.

Saturday night's crowd of 18,329 for the game that Saskatchewan Roughriders won 25-22 was the smallest of the season.

TORONTO—Howie King, 187, Reno, Nev., outpointed George Chuvalo, 206, Toronto (10). MONTREAL—Pat Supple, 118, Montreal, outpointed Gaby Palotto, 118, Montreal (10). NEW YORK—Frankie Ryan, 139, New York, outpointed Frankie Ippolito, 139, New York (10).

BIG FOUR POINT KING

Abbruzzi Nearing All-Time Record

TORONTO (CP)—It's a safe bet to award Montreal Alouettes' Pat Abbruzzi the Big Four football scoring race this year. In the process the former Rhode Island State University backfielder could become the all-time high scorer in Canadian big-time football.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show the 24-year-old Abbruzzi with 102 points on 17 touchdowns, thanks to the inflated value of the touchdown to six points from five set this year by the Canadian Rugby Union. The previous all-time high of 110 was set by Bob Shaw of Calgary Stampede of the Western Inter-provincial Union in 1952 when the touchdown was worth five points.

Gold Cup Ruling May Be Revised

SEATTLE (AP)—The American Power Boat Association will announce this week that Miss Thriftway of Seattle won the Gold Cup hydroplane race in Detroit last September, a story by sports editor Royal Brougham published in today's Seattle Post-Intelligencer says.

Brougham writes that the announcement was scheduled for Monday but was postponed by a court injunction granted in a Detroit circuit court to keep the Gold Cup from being awarded to either Miss Thriftway or Detroit's Miss Pepsi.

In his story Brougham says: "Two prominent hydroplane officials in Detroit admitted Monday night the vote of the American Inboard Racing Commission almost unanimously favors overruling the verdict of race chairman John Carter in awarding the cup to the Pepsi boat after the nifty Thriftway had led the pack all the way around the course."

Miss Thriftway was disqualified by the Detroit racing committee after apparently winning the Gold Cup race at Detroit Sept. 1 and Miss Pepsi was declared winner. It was claimed that Miss Thriftway cut down one of the race course buoys. This was denied by the Seattle contingent and an appeal taken to the commission.

Wings Dominate Top Spots in NHL Scoring

MONTREAL (CP)—Detroit Red Wings, who got away to a slow start a year ago, are the sharpest team so far in the new National Hockey League season and their first-place position is reflected in the fact they have three men among the leading five scorers.

Ted Lindsay heads the NHL parade with six points—two goals and four assists. He picked up three assists last week to take over from teammate Norm Ullman, who had one assist and now is in a four-way tie for second place with five points.

Tod Sloan of Toronto Leafs is ranked above Ullman in the official statistics because Sloan has four goals—highest among the scorers—to Ullman's two. Gordie Howe of Detroit joined the five-point bracket for second place along with Doug Mohns of Boston Bruins. Mohns' five points are all assists.

Browns Sign O'Connell

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland Browns of the National Football League Monday signed quarterback Tom O'Connell, former Big Ten passing star with the University of Illinois, as a numerical replacement for George Ratterman, now on the injury reserve list.

O'Connell, 26, who was signed as a free agent, was with the Chicago Bears in 1953 and for the first two games of this season. He was in the U.S. Air Force during the 1954 and 1955 seasons.

MIAMI, Fla.—Virgil Alkins, 149, St. Louis, knocked out Pat Lewis, Toledo, Ohio (2). BELLINGHAM, B.C.—Jimmy Martineau, 158, Phoenix, Ariz., outpointed Pete Adams, 152, Newark, N.J. (10).

Abbruzzi Nearing All-Time Record

Abbruzzi added three touchdowns to his total last Saturday as the Alouettes' Hamilton Tiger-Cats 22-14 at Montreal. He now leads team-mate Hal Patterson by 36 points. Patterson, native of Rozel, Kas., consolidated his second-place position in the scoring race by going over for two touchdowns to bring his point-total to 66.

In third place with 59 points is Ottawa's Don St. John. Ron Stewart of Queen's, Frank Loftus of University of Western Ontario Mustangs and Tim Reid of the University of Toronto Blues share the lead with 18 points each in the Senior Intercollegiate Union.

Carl, Duke Give Dodgers 1-0 Win

SAPPORO, Japan (AP)—Carl Erskine's slick pitching and a home run by Duke Snider in the ninth inning featured Brooklyn's Dodgers' 1-0 revenge victory over Tokyo Giants Monday.

The barnstorming Dodgers now have a 2-2 record in their 20-game Japan-wide tour. They lost to the Giants 5-4 last week. Erskine held the Giants to three hits and one walk.

PARIS—Alphonse Palmi, 118½, Algeria, outpointed Tony Campo, 120, Philippines (10).

Chevrolet is the place where new ideas grow. And what a crop of them this year! ... Fuel injection ... a brand-new Turbo-glide automatic transmission (optional at extra cost) with Triple-Turbine take-off, smo-o-o-th as Jersey cream.

A full range of five potent engines, with horsepower options ranging clear up to 245.* Scintillating new styling that puts Chevy right up there with the very highest priced cars — and a whole galaxy of 20 spanking new models available in 16 high-fashion solid colours or 15 two-tone combinations. A deeply hooded Command Post instrument panel. A functional new "face" in which bumper and grille are styled as a single unit — and the same smart idea in the rear, combining bumper, bumper guards, stop and taillights. Dozens upon dozens of other brilliant touches, from the ventilation intakes that cap the headlights right down to the smaller 14-inch wheels and softer tires. It's an idea year at Chevrolet — and you'll want to sample them all!

FALLS 12 FLOORS, LIVES

SEATTLE (AP)—A woman fell 12 stories from an apartment house window Monday but escaped death when she landed in a flower bed.

Miss Caylee T. Richardson, 22, a saleswoman, suffered fractures of both legs and her left arm, a possible spine fracture and internal injuries.

Cut-Rate Water Recommended For Crystal Pool

Victoria Council will be asked by its public works committee Thursday to allow the Crystal Garden swimming pool a reduced water rate.

Proposed reduction is about $23 annually.

The city earlier delayed final decision on the matter while attempting to gain concessions for the pool direct from the Greater Victoria Water District, but the water board refused.

In the interim, since the pool was switched from salt to fresh water, it has been billed for all water supplied according to regular rate.

No payment has even been made in the hope a new agreement could be reached with the city.

City Engineer J. C. Garnett told the works committee Monday there is now a water bill owing of $1,531, back to the time of the switch-over last April.

The committee has recommended a new contract retroactive to that time which will permit free use of city water up to 10,000 units each year, provided the pool pays full rates for water used over that amount. The 10,000-unit volume has a value of about $623.

While the pool used salt water in its tanks the city had supplied fresh water for flushing, showers and lawns, of about the same value, without cost, the engineer said.

Esquimalt Approves Hospital Wing Plan

142-Bed Addition to Jubilee Considered Good Way to Use B.C. Centennial Grant

Addition of a 142-bed wing to the Royal Jubilee Hospital was recommended by Esquimalt council Monday as a permanent B.C. Centennial memorial.

A brief, prepared by Jubilee authorities, will be presented to Centennial Committee by Esquimalt representatives, Coun. G. K. Sammon and Russell Potter.

"This will be a much less expensive way of putting up the wing," said Reeve A. C. Wurtel. "The original cost of the project to the municipalities a few years ago was given as $325,000."

MATCHING PLAN

Under the B.C. Centennial plan, provincial government donation of 60 cents per capita would be matched by the municipalities.

President of the hospital board of directors, F. G. Mulliner, said in a brief to council: "By using the Centennial grant the burden upon the members of this (Greater Victoria) community will be further eased to the extent of approximately $75,000."

Reeve Wurtel stressed the recommendation would not be final.

Approval of the ratepayers for making the grant will be decided by a municipal referendum, he said.

IT'S JAM PACKED!

"Oh, I don't know Jim—I see lots of empty seats."

"That's a laugh! I wasn't thinking of the Stadium. I meant the NEW Star Weekly."

"Yeah—I'm looking forward to getting a copy—just what did you mean by Jam packed?"

"Well you know it's going to be completely new in a compact tabloid form—pages ten and a half by fourteen inches and that means the magazine section too."

"I understand it is really going to be a marvellous assembly of pictures and articles and stories."

"I just can't wait till October 29th for it. It'll be some exciting game—I mean paper. Now here come the players."

Youth, 13, Killed

As Bullet Ricochets

WHITEHALL, Mont. (AP)—Clark Russell Lane, 10, was killed by a bullet which ricocheted after killing a rabbit. Police said the boy's brother, Gary, 13, fired a .22-calibre rifle at a rabbit. The bullet killed the animal, then glanced off a tree stump and struck the boy in the head.

Gold Safety Award For Renfrew Crews

PORT RENFREW — Beach Camp, headquarters for Renfrew logging division of British Columbia Forest Products Ltd., this week received the gold award of merit of the B.C. Safety Council for completing 365 days without a lost-time accident.

Accident-free performance of the 75-man camp extended from Oct. 19, 1955, to Oct. 19, 1956. The camp's operations include felling and bucking, booming, bridge building and road construction.

Besides Beach Camp, four other B.C. Forest Products' logging camps on Vancouver Island have received a total of 15 safety awards this year.

Beach Camp is adjacent to Port Renfrew.

To Canadian Shareholders of Husky Oil and Refining Ltd. . . .

an offer has been made by CANADIAN HUSKY OIL LTD.

to exchange its Common and 6% Preferred Shares for all the outstanding Common and 6% Preferred Shares of Husky Oil and Refining Ltd., on a share-for-share basis. The offer is open for four months and expires December 3, 1956.

Holders of Warrants to purchase the Common Shares of Husky Oil and Refining Ltd., who exercise their Warrants during the period of the exchange offer, will also be able to participate in the exchange.

Through the exchange offer, Canadian Husky proposes to acquire all the Common and Preference Shares of Husky Refining not now held by Canadian Husky. The exchange will, however, become effective if, as a result of the exchange offer, Canadian Husky will hold at least 90% of the shares of each such class, and Canadian Husky reserves the right to declare the exchange effective if less than 90%, but more than 80%, of such shares are to be sold.

We believe acceptance of this "exchange offer" to be in the best interests of Canadian Shareholders of Husky Oil and Refining Ltd. and recommend such exchange be carried out through any of our offices from coast to coast. Write, wire or telephone for complete information.

Sports Program In Full Swing At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—The fall sports program at the Community Centre is now in full swing, according to sports committee chairman Al Dyer.

Basketball workouts for boys 16 and under are being held Saturday mornings. Girls 16 and under are practising in the gym Thursday nights from 6.30 to 7.30. Junior men are expected to have a strong club this year and coach Jack Patrik has arranged a series of exhibition games in Victoria, Vancouver and Bellingham.

Badminton is on the upswing with many new junior and adult members participating. Courts are open on Wednesdays and Sundays.

The Community Centre boxing club is rated as one of the strongest on the Island this year. Former Golden Gloves champion Wayne Robinson of Vancouver will wear Centre colors this year, as will Dale Ashton, who used to box at Toronto's Palace Pier. "Skimp" Williams, Terry Eastman, Alan Thorne, Bruce Baillie and Jimmie Lystar also are working out under trainer Nick Lystar.

"About what?"

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained, in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide-variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

The hiker who survived six days in a cave on Mount Seymour, attributes the fact he is still alive to his training as a Boy Scout.

So he went into the woods with two companions; and amongst them they had no small axe or even knife; no waterproof container for matches and, in fact, no matches; no flashlight; no compass; not even a chocolate bar on which to nibble; and when they found they were lost, they separated.

So this is being prepared?

The only possible good which comes of such an episode is that it may contain a lesson for others.

And in the local area, it is wise to remember the Sooke hills can be plenty tough, too.

Let us have nobody going around getting lost. Not even a hunter.

Did you notice the phrase above "when they found they were lost?"

Wonderful, just wonderful, is the English language. Don't know what I'd do without it.

Don't know what to do with it, either.

I see where the law of supply and demand is affecting the price of parking tickets.

It appears the authorities can't sell enough at $2.50, so they are reducing the price to $1.00.

Let us keep this a buyers' market, fellow-parkers, and see if we can't get the price down to three for a quarter.

Yes, it is true I am no longer wearing my summertime straw hat.

It is also true I am wearing a funny little winter hat.

The reason I am no longer wearing my summertime straw hat is, my fellow workers became tired of watching it disintegrate gradually in the heavy dews we have been having lately.

So they formed a committee to jump up and down on my summertime straw hat to complete the process of disintegration.

Following which, the committee ceremoniously cremated the remains.

Thus I was forced to get a wintertime hat, and, due to a combination of circumstances largely set in motion by my favorite wife, I am now wearing the funniest funny little hat I have ever worn.

It is, I am told, the very latest style, and is called a "Flat-top."

But please do not become excited because this Old Man is wearing the very latest style.

The flat-top was the latest style in Mr. Pickwick's day, too.

And if it was good enough for Mr. Pickwick, it is good enough for me.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Charge of careless driving against Arthur Thomas Binks, 1443 Stroud, was dismissed in city police court today by Magistrate H. C. Hall.

Binks was charged after his car was struck in the intersection of Hillside and Quadra by another auto as he attempted to make a left turn.

Magistrate Hall said evidence given by independent witnesses during the trial indicated the oncoming car was travelling at an excessive rate of speed.

Theft of a safe containing $100 from a home in Saanich is being investigated by police.

John P. McColl, 2829 Dysart, reported the safe was taken while he and his wife were visiting friends Sunday evening.

The thieves must have been hefty. The safe weighed 175 pounds.

George March, 19, of 1036 Craigdarroch, was fined $15 in city police court today for being a minor in possession of liquor. He was caught with a bottle of rum in his pocket.

Alexandra Lodge, Sons of England, will meet at Williams Hall, 749 Broughton Street, Thursday at 8 p.m.

Allan Ford, 39, an employee of the municipality for nine years, and secretary of Saanich Town Planning Commission, was appointed by Saanich council Monday as assistant municipal clerk.

The appointment and new position to assist the municipal clerk was recommended by the comptroller-treasurer, John Tribe.

Council also approved Mr. Tribe's recommendation for a complete overhaul of the trades licence department administration system.

'GOODWILL SPECIAL' TO CARRY ROTARIANS

Four steel day-coaches were due to arrive in Victoria today to transport Rotarians and their wives to Nanaimo Wednesday in an inter-city "Goodwill Special."

About 600 are expected to converge on Nanaimo from the Island's 10 Rotary Clubs.

Victoria Rotary, which has 175 members, has booked 200 seats on the train, leaving the E & N depot at 3:05 p.m. Wednesday.

Inter-city chairman Jack Housez said less than half the Victoria tickets are sold, and urged members not to leave bookings until the last minute. A similar trip two years ago was "a smash success," he said.

Mayor Percy Scurrell, a former director of Rotary International, will take the city's greetings north. Heading local Rotary executives will be vice-president Maurice Green.

Archbishop Sexton to Conduct Ceremony For New 'Columbia' and 'John Antle'

The two new vessels of the Columbia Coast Mission will be dedicated here in a public ceremony by Archbishop Harold E. Sexton Easter Week, April 10-17.

Island Entries Accepted for Color Display

Thirteen Vancouver Island slides have been selected for a public display of color transparencies entered in the 16th Victoria International Salon of Photography.

Dates for the show will be announced later.

Island entries will be "Autumn Glory," by Colin Gibson, 855 Cowper; "Silver Birch" and "Canterbury Ruins" (both unanimously accepted by the judges), by A. T. Gray, 3928 Winton; "Spring" and "Wallflowers," William E. Nye, 1722

Duchess; "Copperite," David S. Preston, 1254 Tattersall; "Mum's Reflection," Percy A. Trowsdale, 3035 Albany; "Pink Ladies," Stephen M. Jones, 2382

Lincoln; "Harmonious Design," J. M. Henderson, 730 Vancouver; "Oil Slick" (unanimous selection), John R. Fawcus, 1013

Vancouver; "Driftwood No. 6" (unanimous selection), H. A. Dreany, Lake Cowichan; "Autumn Colors" and "Camp in the Glen," M. C. Wright, Lakes Road, Duncan.

Announcement was made here today by famed superintendent of the mission, Canon Alan Greene, aboard the third vessel of the fleet, the Rendezvous.

The new $85,000 hospital ship Columbia has just been launched and the new $40,000 John Antle is expected to move down the slipways "within a month" Mr. Greene said.

The dedication ceremony likely will take place at the public wharf in the Inner Harbor.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

The canon will be here only until Thursday morning, and Rendezvous is open for public inspection today.

The ships of the mission serve 10,000 persons in 225 coastal communities.

Rev. Joseph Titus will take over the Rendezvous when the new John Antle is launched, and Mr. Greene will skipper the new vessel.

The dedication ceremony will mark the first time the little fleet has been in Victoria together.

Mr. Greene last visited Victoria two years ago aboard the old John Antle.

The Anglican mission ships are one of the 19 projects supported by Victoria Community Chest dollars, the only one outside the community.

RESEARCHERS RETURN

Totem Expedition Boon to Old Art

New impetus in the drive to keep B.C.'s ancient art of totemic carving alive will come from a Queen Charlotte Islands expedition which ends here today.

Wilson Duff, provincial anthropologist, believes photographs and sketches of century-old Haida totems on lonely Anthony Island will lend added accuracy to the reconstruction work of such famed present-day carvers as Mungo Martin, David Martin and Henry Hunt.

The research party from the B.C. provincial museum, headed by director Dr. Clifford Carl, closely examined 36 Indian totem poles still standing in the deserted village of Ninintins, on the east coast of Anthony Island in the Queen Charlotte group.

The research party from the B.C. provincial museum, headed by director Dr. Clifford Carl, closely examined 36 Indian totem poles still standing in the deserted village of Ninintins, on the east coast of Anthony Island in the Queen Charlotte group.

107 Years Old

The "youngest" totem was estimated at 70 years old; the oldest, according to Mr. Duff, is at least 107.

The museum party, which left here Oct. 15 aboard HMCS Brockville, will use the photographs and finely-detailed sketches as material for reconstructed carvings at Thunderbird Park, Victoria, and other B.C. centres, to bolster this province's "Totemland" appeal for tourists.

Mr. Duff has long wanted to visit Anthony Island, and to investigate what may be the last major "stand" of authentic totems in B.C. In this, he has been quietly prodded by Mungo Martin, whose art was handed down to him through generations, and who proved his skill as chief carver on the successful "world's tallest totem" project.

The provincial anthropologist hopes to have a second expedition organized next spring, to bring out some of the totems, and put them into dry storage to preserve them.

Fragile From Rot

At present most are fragile from rot which has crept up through the soil. Unlike the carefully-engineered "tallest totem," the originals were set directly into the soil, and over the years moisture has crept through them. In many cases, only the outer shells remain.

But the research done on the present expedition, plus existence of the authentic totems themselves, will ensure complete accuracy of reconstruction by today's carvers.

A second phase of expedition's work is also a link with the past.

Charles Gulget, museum curator of birds and animals, succeeded in trapping 22 white-footed mice, which he regards as of extreme value in evolutionary research.

"They are small enough to be easily handled," he states. "They have a definite place in evolution, and we hope to learn much from studying them."

Mr. Gulget set 200 traps in the meadow and forest surrounding the deserted Indian village to catch his 22 specimens.

Traps Missing

Thirty of the traps were mysteriously missing when he returned to garner the catch. But the "take" was far above his expectations.

The expedition encountered seasonal heavy weather, riding out gales of up to 80 miles an hour. The wind moderated long enough for two landings on the rugged island.

Indians Beat Drums For Liquor Rights

Chief-Led Delegation Appeals to Cabinet

A delegation of 27 B.C. Indians held a pow-wow with the provincial government today in a bid to obtain equal lands they formerly occupied.

Leading authorities were quoted to show that "your predecessors had not complied with the practice of the British and Imperial Act." The brief continued:

"Since the command of Her Majesty Queen Victoria has not been carried out, it would be discourteous to Her Majesty were we, the Indians of B.C., to join with you in the forthcoming Centenary celebrations unless your government first complied with the edict of Her Majesty and met the Indians in council to discuss the terms and conditions by which the Indians would surrender their tribal territories."

PAULL SPEAKS

Chief Mathias saluted Premier Bennett and members of the cabinet, then indicated that Andy Paull, president of the North American Indian Brotherhood, would act as spokesman.

Mr. Paull presented a brief to the cabinet asking for repeal of section 75 of the B.C. Liquor Act which prohibits Indians from entering a liquor store.

"What we are asking are the same privileges as everybody else," Mr. Paull said earlier in an interview.

CAN BE EXTENDED

"The federal government has ruled that this privilege may be extended to Indians at the request of the provincial government. We want the B.C. government to make the specific request to Ottawa."

Indians now can only buy beer in taverns, and it must be consumed there.

The brief also stated that "the benefits intended to be given to the electors through the imposition of the 5 per cent sales tax is denied the Indians of B.C. to the extent enjoyed by the electors who do not reside on an Indian reserve."

NO SALES TAX

The cabinet was asked to agree "that an Indian residing on an Indian reserve who is a registered Indian shall not pay a sales tax when the goods are delivered to an Indian reserve."

It was pointed out that this tax exemption for Indians is now in force in Quebec.

The government was asked for an appropriation so that beaver may be restocked in certain areas for the benefit of native Indians, as is now done in Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec.

"While many of our people now find employment in the many industries in British Columbia, there are yet some who cannot find this kind of employment. And their only means of earning a livelihood is by trapping and hunting."

"We ask that special areas for Indians be allocated and that they shall not be discriminated against when trying to secure positions as guides."

CONSERVE INDIANS

"We ask that any regulation which impedes this avocation be repealed as it is necessary to conserve Indians as well as animals."

"The diversion of streams has rendered extinct the former hunting and trapping areas and this denial must of necessity be adequately replaced, or compensation given to the Indians affected."

In a reference to the B.C. centennial in 1958, the brief said "The policy of the British has always been to first meet the natives in council for the extinguishment of their title to the

Practical Yet Attractive Are Large Hearth Brooms

By PENNY SAVER

A crackling fire in the fireplace is a cosy sight, and warming hands and toes before the homey blaze is really something special. Whether you're spending an evening at home with a book or having a few people in, a little fire in the living room or den is a must. If you object a little and say that a fireplace can be so messy, then you haven't seen the bright and handy hearth brooms. Long straw brooms, they have carved twist handles of wood with leather hang-up thongs. A whisk of this broom, which comes in either green or maroon-red, and sparks, wood or dust are neatly brushed into the fireplace. It's so attractive that you won't be hiding it out of sight. Hang it alongside the fireplace where it's easy to reach. They're selling at $2.95.

You've seen the handy slates that can be used for jotting notes or reminders. Write on the plastic-covered surface with a leadless pencil and the impression is visible under the plastic. When you wish to erase the writing, just lift the underneath surface, separating it from the part upon which you wrote, and the impressions disappear. You can now buy these slates to keep golf scores and bridge scores, too. Clearly marked lines and sections for either game are outlined on the slates. These slates are metal-backed and rimmed. When you wish to erase the tally, pull out the centre section and push it back in again. Golf score boards are 49 cents. Larger ones, plain or marked for bridge, are 69 cents. A magnetized metal and plastic "pencil" especially for these slates will stick to the surface. These are 39 cents.

Since bridge came into the conversation, let me tell you about some attractive bridge ash trays I found. Figured glass in the shapes of hearts, clubs, spades or diamonds are just the things for your bridge parties. They'd also make good card prizes. They're just 19 cents each.

Here's another ash tray that is really a part of a coaster. Just put your glass in the round trough and next to it is a crescent-shaped ash tray especially for you. These, too, are 19 cents each.

Book matches with the familiar playing card symbols on them are your answer to the perpetual question, "Do you have a match, please?" Eight in a plastic package are 37 cents. Napkins with novel designs on them for your bridge parties may also be purchased in different sized packages. Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find the items mentioned here in the column... I will save you from walking around town looking for them.

WHY GROW OLD?

Got a Skin Problem? Here's Advice for You

It is too bad that we cannot shed our skins once a year and bloom forth minus wrinkles, blackheads, pimples, large pores or whatever other complexion defect we may have.

A constant stream of letters asking for help in skin troubles passes across my desk. This is understandable because a lovely complexion can enhance irregular, or even homely, features.

Many of these conditions are the direct result of neglect or incorrect care. For instance, the young woman who has an oily skin may fail to wash her face in soap and water several times a day. The little oil glands then become packed with oil and dirt and cause blackheads.

From here on she probably picks at her face and squeezes the blackheads until they become infected and cause pimples. She then picks at the pimples and spreads the infection to other pores.

The woman who has a dry skin can profit by cream cleansing as well as oily creams for lubrication. The one with an oily skin does not need creams but does require frequent soap and water cleansing. She should also use an astringent, while this may be too drying for a dry complexion.

Large pores harass many women. These usually occur when the skin is oily and the little oil glands are expanded and lax. The habit of leaving make-up on for long periods without cleansing may be a factor. If you have large pores, wash your face with soap and water. A complexion brush may be helpful because of the stimulation it provides. Keep your astringent in the icebox and apply it after rinsing and drying the face.

If you have this kind of complexion cut down on fats in the diet and leave off all rich, heavy, highly seasoned foods. A well-developed case of acne should be treated by a skin specialist. Much has been learned about this condition during relatively recent years. Sometimes hormone therapy is used.

Today minor acne scars can be removed and even deep ones can be greatly minimized. There is a lot of available help for skin problems from the medical profession as well as from the cosmetic counters.

If you would like my leaflet No. 47 "Your Outer Coating (care of skin)" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mammoth Shower Party Honored Kay Welsh Prior to Her Marriage

SOOKE—Miss Kay Welsh, who was married Saturday to J. van Ek, was honored recently by fellow members of the Sunday school and choir of Knox Presbyterian Church with a shower in Sooke Community Hall.

Hostesses were Mrs. K. Shepherd, Mrs. F. Richardson, Mrs. R. Wray, Mrs. W. Sharp, Mrs. H. Wadams, Mrs. J. Dunn, Mrs. J. Jackman, Mrs. S. West, Mrs. C. Cyr, Mrs. J. Linley, Mrs. R. Kendrew, Mrs. M. Gibson, Mrs. R. Gibson, Mrs. A. Brooks, Mrs. E. Butler, Mrs. C. Richardson, Mrs. V. Richardson, Miss M. Gould, and the Misses Marilyn Miles and Barbara Lewis.

Mrs. K. Shepherd presented a corsage of split white carnations and red rosebuds to the honor guest, who was escorted through a trellised arch by Miss Lewis to a table on which stood vases of bronze chrysanthemums and the many gifts. Mrs. E. Welsh, stepmother of the bride, and Mrs. H. van Ek, mother of the groom, received corsages of red and white carnations, and a corsage of small yellow chrysanthemums was presented to Mrs. W. J. Welsh, the bride-elect's grandmother.

Guests enjoyed a buffet supper served from a table centred with an imitation wedding cake flanked by little choir-boys and pink candles in silver candlesticks. The mothers of the bride and groom-elect presided at the urns.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. H. van Ek, Mrs. Slots and Mrs. J. Hess from Port Alberni; Mrs. H. van Ek Jr. and Mrs. Storey, Victoria, and Mrs. D. Cook, Saanichton.

Sooke guests were Mrs. H. Lewis, Mrs. J. Dunn Jr., Mrs. Grainger, Mrs. Hatchkiss, Mrs. R. Bluin, Mrs. H. Pontius, Mrs. A. K. Feltus, Mrs. G. Sutar, Mrs. G. Nixon, Mrs. N. Goodwin, Mrs. P. Mrs. J. Atterbury, Mrs. F. Brownsey, Mrs. C. Thompson, Mrs. C. Radford, Mrs. J. Westad, Mrs. G. Neal, Mrs. P. Bowles, Mrs. Pinney, Mrs. W. J. Welsh, Louise Davis answers: Mailing announcements of a new arrival is only to inform relatives and friends who wouldn't otherwise have known the news. If, for instance, a close friend is telephoned and told that "Mary and Bill Townsend just had a 7½-pound baby boy, William Jr., this morning," what would be the point in following up with an announcement? Sending a card might be construed as a hint for a gift.

Usually when a baby is born, the father, grandmother or family spokesman has a long list of people to phone and wire. It shouldn't be necessary to tell these people again.

19-Year-Old Girl Flies From India For Pre-Arranged Sikh Marriage

By KITTY DIXON

Exotically lovely and very shy, young Gurpal Kaur Rai of Punjab, India, flew to Victoria last week to be married to a man she met Saturday morning for the first time.

When Charn Singh Sangha called to meet his 19-year-old bride at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mohen Dheensaw, 420 Beta Street, he greeted her, then spent several hours talking with his host, not speaking to Gurpal again until he said good-bye. They will not meet again until the wedding. Such is the Sikh custom.

The marriage was arranged by their parents, the young couple having no say in the decision.

Gurpal will wear a delicately embroidered yellow silk sari, one of several she brought with her from India, when she is married, Sunday morning, in the Sikh temple.

Mr. and Mrs. Dheensaw, with whom she is staying until the wedding, have bought her an outfit of modern western clothes to wear until then—the first she has ever worn. Monday afternoon, the sister of her husband-to-be, Mrs. P. Mann, took Gurpal shopping for a wardrobe of clothes she will wear after the wedding.

GROOM BUYS CLOTHES

"It is customary for the bride to supply all her clothing for the wedding ceremony, and the groom to supply the clothes she will wear after the wedding," explained Mrs. Dheensaw.

Gurpal smiled. She cannot yet speak English, although she can understand English conversation and write a fluent hand.

Her life in India was secluded, for young girls are not permitted to go out to parties and mix with other young people as they are in Canada.

"Punjabi families keep to themselves," said Mr. Dheensaw. "The only parties Gurpal has known were those at home with her relatives."

She attended a girls' school in India, where she was taught needlework and cooking in preparation for marriage. But her cooking lessons will be of little help when she has to cope with Canadian food. Learning modern methods of cookery is just one of many adjustments Gurpal will have to make.

Besides a trousseau of beautiful pastel silk shawls and saris, all hand-embroidered in silver and gold threads, sequins and beads, Gurpal brought with her a selection of linens for her new home. She hand-worked all the linens, which include covers for sofas, pillowcases and tablecloths.

Wearing a pale pink, hand-embroidered sari she brought from India, bride-elect Gurpal Kaur Rai smiles shyly for the camera-man, whose flash-bulb startled her. She comes from a well-educated family. Her father, the late Subadar Kartar Singh, was a lieutenant in the Indian Army.

Wedding festivities begin Friday night, when Sikh women from Victoria and up-Island will gather at the home of Mrs. Dheensaw for a party. They will sing and clap their hands and those already married will participate in Hindu dances, led by Mrs. Dheensaw.

"I shall be the first to dance, because I am giving the wedding," said Mrs. Dheensaw.

A similar party will take place Saturday, at the Dheensaw home, but will continue all night. At 5 or 6 a.m. the bride will take a bath and will rub a henna mixture into the palms of her hands and her fingernails for good luck.

She will then begin to dress for the ceremony.

Hospital Auxiliary Buys Wax Bath

Funds for the purchase of a wax bath for treatment of arthritic patients in the hospital were voted at meeting of the Gorge Road Hospital Auxiliary.

Plans were also completed for the Poinsettia Tea and Bazaar to be held on Nov. 16, and a colorful array of stuffed animals and other novelties were on display as samples of articles to be sold.

Mrs. C. C. Warren presided and with Mrs. W. Beutelspacher and Mrs. W. McGregor, took part in the induction ceremony for new member, Mrs. N. Douglas. Mrs. E. Munroe reported that $100 was netted at the rummage sale. Other reports were given by Mrs. W. Stewart Smith, visiting and treats; Mrs. C. Altken, mobile cart, and Mrs. M. Brethour, occupational therapy.

A tour of the hospital was arranged recently by the auxiliary for members of the Fidelity Group of First United Church. A similar tour is also being arranged for the Women's Auxiliary to the Cowichan District Hospital, Duncan. These tours are to acquaint interested groups with the function of this chronic and convalescent hospital in the community and its needs.

Mrs. G. Fairall was a guest at the meeting.

Canadian Daughters League, Assembly No. 5, tea and sale of home cooking and novelties, Newstead Hall, Thursday from 2.30 to 5.

Woman's Auxiliary to the United Church, Michigan Street, bazaar on Thursday from 2.30 p.m. All the usual attractions. Afternoon tea to be served.

Members Honored at Diocesan Board Meeting in View Royal

Life memberships were presented to Miss D. E. Mitchell and Mrs. R. J. R. Stephen at meeting of the Diocesan Board of the Woman's Auxiliary held for the first time in All Saints' Church, View Royal, last Friday.

A dominion life membership certificate was presented to Miss Mitchell by Mrs. M. W. Mackenzie; the pin by Mrs. F.

R. Goodwin and a corsage by Mrs. J. L. Heald. A diocesan life membership certificate was presented to Mrs. Stephen by Mrs. G. Storey; the pin was given by Mrs. E. A. Pope and a corsage by Mrs. W. Duval.

Mrs. B. P. Harding presided; Mrs. Stephen welcomed the members; prayers were read by Mrs. H. M. Charter and scripture by Mrs. G. D. Pitt-Turner.

Canon S. J. Wickens conducted noonday devotions.

Treasurer's report, presented by Mrs. Goodwin, showed a balance of $3,471.16. She also read a letter from the dominion president stating that a sum of $52,127.54 had been given by WA branches across Canada to the United Thankoffering. This is an increase of $3,042.05 over last year.

Report of the Dorcas secretary, Mrs. G. V. Jarvis, showed that a cheque of $100 had been sent by the senior WA of Christ Church, Alert Bay, for this work; clothing and baby clothes had been received from city and up-Island branches and six sacks of clothing from St. Peter's, Quamichan.

Reports were also given by Mrs. C. N. Whipple, Miss J. Leigh, Mrs. A. Bates, Mrs. C. D. George, Mrs. C. Simmons, Mrs. D. Brooks and Mrs. R. Pidcock. Mrs. Harding gave a short resume of the dominion annual meeting held recently in Halifax. Miss P. Hocking, matron of All Saints' Hospital, Aklatik, showed slides taken during a visit to Africa this summer. Mrs. Heald gave the vote of thanks.

Woman's Place in Home And at Work Discussed

Members of Arbutus Toast-mistress Club agreed at their last meeting that parental supervision and guidance of the pre-school child gives a firm stepping-stone for entry into the outside world and helps in the child's adaptation to changing situations.

They also agreed that women who have their families "well in hand" and have leisure hours for "tiddling thumbs" are "quite justified in seeking employment outside the home."

Mrs. F. Blasius conducted this table topic followed by an educational lesson on the same subject by Mrs. T. Akerman.

An installation service was held for new member Miss Ella Brett. Her introductory speech was followed by impromptu presented by Miss Dora Ponsford, Mrs. R. Thomas, Mrs. E. L. Aubel, Miss Joyce Taylor and Miss Muriel McKeown. Miss Doris Thomas gave the inspiration speech.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Anita Abbott, aged 13, Charleston, West Va., for her question:

Why Can We See Orion Only in Winter?

North of the equator, there is always Polaris shining in the night sky. If you watch all night, the whole sky seems to wheel and turn around this constant star. A few constellations make close circles around the Pole Star. These are the familiar Big Dipper, the Little Dipper, Cassiopeia, Cepheus and Draco. To us, these are the circumpolar stars. They never rise and set below the horizon. They circle the sky once every 24 hours, though we see them only after dark.

The further north we go, the higher Polaris shines in the sky. At the North Pole it is right overhead.

Even our circumpolar stars change with the seasons. Early of a May evening, the pointers of the Big Dipper point down and early of an October evening they point up towards the Pole Star. Further from Polaris are the stars that rise and set. The same time each night finds them a little further towards the west. In late fall, Orion pokes above the horizon during the night. Each night, this most brilliant of all constellations rises a little earlier. By Jan. 1 it is high in the sky by 9 o'clock. Later in the year, it is over in the west, all ready to set by sundown.

Of course, the stars themselves do not travel over our sky in this manner. They seem to do so because of the movements of the earth. The circumpolar stars seem to wheel around each night because the earth is turning on its axis. And one end of the axis points almost directly at Polaris. The seasonal changes are caused by the earth's journey around the sun. This orbit is a circle 600 million miles around and 186 million miles across. During the year, the earth travels through different parts of the sky. Does this mean that we get different views of the starry heavens? Not at all, the stars are so far away that a difference of a few hundred million miles would hardly show. The real difference is where the earth is in relation to the sun.

Sometimes we are on one side of the sun, sometimes on another. Remember we see the stars only at night when we have our backs to the sun. With our backs to the sun in June, we face out towards the constellation Scorpio. The Scorpion is a constellation of summer skies. With our backs to the sun in January, we face out towards glorious Orion. By then we have moved around to where the Scorpion is on the opposite side of the sun. As the earth rotates, this summer constellation comes into our skies with the sun.

In summer, we are on the opposite side of the sun from Orion. The starry hunter rises and sets over the sky during the daytime. Yes, Orion passes over our skies every day of the year, though we can only see the beautiful constellation when it appears after dark.

Andy sends a Hammond International World Globe to Marilyn Plumlee, age nine, of Wichita, Kansas, for her question:

How did Rhode Island get its name?

You might expect a state with such a name to be an island. Of course, Rhode Island is not an island state. It nestles around beautiful Narragansett Bay, an inlet of the Atlantic Ocean. In this bay are several sizeable islands. One of them can give you a clue to the name of the smallest of our states. It is named Aquidneck Island or Rhode Island. This is the island that gave its name to the whole state of Rhode Island.

We are not certain how the island itself came to be named. Someone may have originally named it with the Greek word for roses. In this case it would be the Isle of Roses. On the other hand, it may have been Roode Eyland, meaning Red Island, by the Dutch. The shore

27 PAIR OF SHOES

World Hitch-Hiker Stops in Victoria

By TONY DICKASON

A pair of the world's itchiest feet shuffled to a stop in Victoria over the weekend.

Thick-soled Max Fuks was attached to a 24-year-old Parisian who has hitch-hiked 62,000 miles since August 13, 1953.

He's doing what most people would like to do, and haven't the gumption—hitch-hiking around the world.

He's now working on his 27th pair of shoes, which are black, heavy, and estimably serviceable.

Mr. Fuks left Paris with the equivalent of $4 in his pocket; he hasn't picked up much more since.

But when desperate, he works, and has had such jobs as a busboy, dishwasher, cook, electrician and in Montreal had a short weekly TV series.

Why is he doing it?

"I shall write a book when I finish, probably in 1958," said the mustached, short and smiling amble.

Mr. Fuks was a diamond cutters' apprentice when he left. Today he said his ambition is to be a newspaperman, even though the gems are rarer.

"They are the same everywhere

'ABOUT 160' Older Than He Thought—By 50 Years

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (Reuters) — William Bisset, an African who thought his age was "merely" 109 has turned out to be about 160 years old.

Bisset's age was discovered when he walked briskly into the district surgeon's office here for a medical examination for tax redemption purposes.

Doctors found his health good, intellect and memory unaffected, and on questioning him, discovered that he clearly remembered details of Port Elizabeth in 1800 and gave a full description of the arrival of British settlers here in 1820.

Bisset gave this reason for his long life: A daily diet of porridge, moderate drinking—and heavy smoking.

Early Day Coins on Show Here Nov. 10

A collection of 25,000 rare coins including $10 and $25 Sir James Douglas gold pieces will be shown the public for a week starting Nov. 10 at the Art Gallery, Moss Street.

The $50,000 display is being sponsored by the Victoria Numismatic Society.

Only seven of the Sir James Douglas gold pieces are known to exist. It is believed fewer than 70 were distributed after being struck in 1862.

Last transaction involving the coinage was during an auction of deposed Kink Farouk's collection. It sold for $10,000.

Rare currency from Western Canada's first bank, the MacDonald Bank, also will be shown. The bank was opened in the gold rush era.

RICHARD WIDMARK

TWO for the SHOW

(BB TO A) "THE LAST WAGON" (Capitol) — Thanks to the penetrating personality of Richard Widmark, some excellent work by a group of comparative newcomers, 20th Century-Fox's "The Last Wagon" emerges with enough thrills to satiate the most avid western action fan.

The lower half of the column's double rating is aimed at the film's ending. In the year 1956 it is difficult to believe. Nonetheless, it scarcely detracts from the whole.

The interesting thing about "The Last Wagon" is the plot. It is refreshingly different to the run-of-the-Indian western. In it, Widmark plays a white man brought up by Comanche Indians. Three men have ravaged his Indian wife and killed her, also their two sons. He hunts them down and slays them and is picked up by a degenerate sheriff who drags him more-dead-than-alive into the safety of a wagon train.

THAT NIGHT youngsters of the group, including Felicia Farr, Widmark's co-star; Susan Kohner, a half-breed Indian girl; Stephanie Griffin, her white sister, and young Tommy Rettig decide to sneak away for a midnight swim. When they return it is to find everyone in the wagon train dead — killed and butchered by Indians.

The balance of the play is devoted to Widmark leading

'White Paper' Due Today On Ike's H-Bomb Policy

Republicans Claim Ban Useless Without Foolproof Inspection

(From AP Dispatches) WASHINGTON—The U.S. today awaited the release of a "white paper" on the H-bomb question, as the administration's answer to Adlai Stevenson's proposal to ban all H-bomb tests.

The "white paper" was ordered by President Eisenhower. It is designed to back up his viewpoint that a test-ban agreement would be worthless without a foolproof mutual inspection system.

The issue has been one of the main points of the presidential campaign, and was compounded this week into a foreign policy debate when Eisenhower charged Soviet Premier Bulganin was guilty of meddling in internal U.S. politics when he published the text of his latest letter to the president.

SHARES RESENTMENT Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, said he shared Eisenhower's "resentment at the manner and timing" of the Soviet message, but called the American reply "unfortunate."

"The real issue is not Mr. Bulganin's manners or Russian views about American politics," Stevenson said. It was what could be done "to save the world from hydrogen disaster."

He is expected to broaden his attack of calling the Republican foreign policy "erratic, naive, clumsy and timid" in a major speech tonight at Madison Square Garden.

Stevenson, speaking in the traditionally isolationist state of Ohio and in the Republican stronghold of Cincinnati, charged the president with not telling the truth about Suez and "making political capital out of a crisis that could engulf the world."

"I cannot remember any series of diplomatic strokes so erratic, naive and clumsy as the events of the past few years through which Russia gained a welcome to the Near and Middle East."

SEES RISK JUSTIFIED Stevenson's vice-presidential running mate, Senator Estes Kefauver, said Monday that the Democrats will take whatever political risk is involved in going along with the Russians or any other atomic power on an end to atomic testing.

Vice-President Richard Nixon campaigning in Michigan, said he was sure "America's workers are not going to play politics with their prosperity" by voting Democrat next month.

Lumber Industry Fears Heavy Winter Lay-Offs

VANCOUVER (CP)—Labor and management officials in the B.C. timber industry have forecast widespread unemployment in the industry this winter.

Both groups agreed it would be "the worst winter since the war" and some said unemployment might spread to other industries.

International Woodworkers of America expect to have 1,200 men out of work by mid-November. Already nearly 800 have been laid off.

"I cannot remember losing

1,200 men in such a short time," an IWA official said Monday.

"In nine years' experience I have never seen so many men looking for work as there are now."

A spokesman for employers said: "We have warned of the possibility of a recession in lumbering in the past and it looked as though we were crying 'wolf.' Now it appears to be here."

Officials agreed that sawmill workers will be hit first.

Two reasons given for the expected slump are:

Attempts by the government to control inflation by clamping down on new home mortgages, thus reducing the demand for new houses.

High shipping costs which have caused the United Kingdom to reduce orders from Canada and start buying more common grade timber from Russia and the Baltic countries.

A spokesman said the industry will have to consider asking Ottawa to lift the mortgage restrictions. He added that the expected recession had coincided with a seasonal decline in business.

FIRST NUCLEAR REACTOR FOR CANADIAN COLLEGE

HAMILTON (CP)—Construction of a $1,300,000 nuclear reactor for university and industrial research is to begin soon at Hamilton College, McMaster University, the college's board of governors announced today.

The reactor, principal item in a $5,000,000 expansion program in the field of engineering education and research, will be the first university reactor in Canada. It is to be financed jointly by the Canadian government and a group of Canadian industrialists.

Tentative date for the reactor to begin operation is autumn, 1958.

Logging Approved On Watershed

A general policy of logging Greater Victoria watershed on a sustained yield, patch-logging basis was approved in principle today by Greater Victoria Water Board.

Approval was given to logging of four 25-acre patches in the Sooke Lake area in the next year as an experiment.

After one year the board will check with outside authorities to determine whether the logging has in any way been detrimental to district water supplies.

The plan, put forward by Commissioner Ronald Upward, aims at providing more and purer water.

FLOW CUT 25%

The presence of old, mature trees now reduces the watershed flow by 25 per cent, Mr. Upward said.

Any surplus revenues would be put back into the system. Additional facilities would be built which otherwise would have to be paid for by the district through taxes or increased water costs.

The plan is for continuous logging. It would take 70 years to log the 20,000-acre watershed using the patch system.

The board meeting, chaired by Mayor Percy Scurr, and attended by Reeve A. C. Wur- F. E. Norris of Oak Bay, approved the scheme, with only one member dissenting, Ald. Robert Macmillan.

French Hunt Sea For Gun Runners

PARIS (UP)—Premier Guy Mollet announced tonight that French warships will patrol the Eastern Mediterranean "to track down all arms traffic" which France accuses Egypt of sending to Algerian rebels.

Mollet told a cheering national assembly that France is recalling her ambassador from Cairo and appealing the alleged Egyptian-sponsored arms shipments to the United Nations security council.

France has charged that the steamer Athos intercepted off the Algerian coast last week with 70 tons of munitions was loaded in Alexandria as a gun-runner for Algeria rebels.

"We gave Egypt until 10 a.m. today to give us a satisfactory answer to the Athos question," Mollet told the assembly.

"But by 10 a.m. we had received no reply."

TUNIS (UP)—Moslem youths demonstrated violently here and in Casablanca today against the dramatic midnight seizure of five Algerian rebel leaders snatched from their airplane while en route to a "peace conference" in Tunis.

WIRE BRIEFS

Red-Purged Officers Named to High Posts

WARSAW (AP)—Poland's parliament was called into session today amid public celebration of its newly-proclaimed independence course. A mass of new rumors of Soviet troop and warship movements in and around Poland were discounted meanwhile. Most Poles thought the threat had passed of Russian military intervention to halt Warsaw's disentanglement from Moscow controls.

Gen. Marian Spychalski, once-purged officer, today was appointed deputy minister of national defence, replacing Gen. Kazimierz Witaszewski.

Warsaw radio said there had been a shakeup in Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's defence ministry. It said Gen. Spychalski, once purged with Wladyslaw Gomulka, the new chief of the politburo, had been appointed deputy defence minister and chief of political officers in the Polish army.

He took the place of Gen. Witaszewski, who had played a key role in exerting Stalinist control over Poland's armed forces.

There had been fears Rokossovsky might resort to a coup d'etat to maintain pro-Moscow forces in the party leadership.

There are many Soviet army officers in the Polish army, but most Poles think the rank and file of the army would not follow Rokossovsky against the new regime.

Reliable sources reported Monday that Polish troops at Szczecin (Stettin) and Wroclaw were organizing demonstrations against high officers and adopting resolutions declaring their unity with the people.

Angry crowds in Wroclaw, the former German city of Breslau, stormed the headquarters of the Polish-Russian Friendship Society today and tore down and trampled on Soviet flags.

A Western eyewitness said the crowds yelled "Rokossovsky to Siberia!" and "Tell the truth about the Katyn murders."

Marshal Rokossovsky, a Polish-born Soviet Army hero of the Second World War was ousted Sunday from the United Workers party politburo in a purge of Stalinists.

The Katyn forest was the scene of the machine-gunning of 10,000 Polish officers in 1940, before Russia entered the war.

Similar demonstrations were reported from Stettin and the university city of Krakow. All three towns are near the Polish border with Communist East Germany.

The four-week session had been scheduled before the shake-up in party leadership. The legislators, elected without opposition four years ago, are due to be replaced in new elections Dec. 16.

A government shake-up, placing all the organs of the state firmly in the hands of the new party leaders, may be announced through parliament in a few days.

The reorganization possibly will include the removal of Rokossovsky as defence minister.

Parliament also is expected to take other popular steps, including new economic measures aimed at raising the standard of living. Gomulka has indicated that private enterprise may be called on to help solve the critical housing shortage.

Meanwhile it was reported at London that the public prosecutor of Poland has ordered a revision of all the indictments of those charged in last June's Poznan hunger riots.

At the same time, the prosecutor moved to have the court release all persons now held in custody but not charged with murder or robbery.

WASHINGTON (AP)—High American officials fear Russia may yet take drastic action—possibly including force—to smash Communist Poland's drive for independence. In their view, the most dangerous phase of the struggle for control of Poland is just beginning, with the Kremlin apparently undecided about its counter-move.

Russian Loggers See 'Cat' Show

NANAIMO—Visiting Russian timbermen, touring Canada under leadership of Russian minister of forest industries G. M. Orlov, today paid their second visit to Vancouver Island with a tour of Comox Logging and Railway Co. Ltd. operations at Nanaimo Lakes.

Under guidance of Gordon Naylor, camp foreman, the party visited one of the company's "cat shows," where yard-

ing of logs is done with a large rubber-tired diesel-powered tractor.

They were particularly impressed by the nine miles of paved road leading from the camp to the woods operations.

Wednesday the visiting party will visit Northwest Bay division of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., south of Parksville, where the company operates, a fully modern logging camp.

Last week's "good driver of the week" learned of her good fortune today in a hospital bed where she is recovering from injuries received in a traffic accident.

Hospital officials said today Miss Olive Buckingham, 44, of 431 Linden, was in "improved" condition with internal injuries suffered Friday night in a two-car collision.

Miss Buckingham was announced at Monday night's hockey game as the winner of two tickets to the Cougars' next home game.

She was singled out by city police traffic officers earlier last week as a safe and courteous driver.

She will also receive a special certificate as part of the present campaign by Greater Victoria police forces to emphasize safety practices during the winter months when the accident toll usually climbs.

Miss Buckingham was the driver of a car which was in collision with an auto driven by Eric Norlin, 2842 Blackwood, at Cook and Richardson Streets.

Her car veered into a parked auto after the collision. A passenger, Alice Caston, 44, of the same address, escaped serious injury.

71 DEATHLESS DAYS TO GO

Death Waits Four Before Year's End

Fifteen people have been killed in traffic accidents in the Greater Victoria region since the beginning of 1956.

At the same rate another four will die in the 71 days remaining before the end of the year.

These are the four lives it is hoped to save with the "72 deathless days" campaign inaugurated by the Times Monday.

And with them it is hoped to save pain and disfigurement for scores who may be involved in auto crashes.

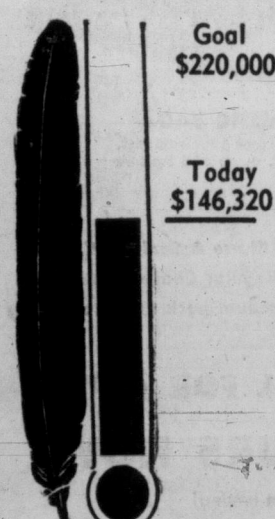

Every driver in the community must take part in the campaign. It is only the individual driver who can do it by observing all traffic laws and exercising the greatest care at all times.

The record since Monday:

FATALITIES 0.

ACCIDENTS (in which injuries sustained) 1.

There was bound to be a decline in employment during the winter when house construction for example stops with the onset of sub-zero temperatures in the prairies. But plans are being laid here for extensive campaigns to stimulate winter employment. They may result in one of the biggest winter publicity campaigns of the kind ever experienced in Canada.

The inflationary pressures are so great within the Canadian economy at this time that the Bank of Canada's increase in its rate is not expected to materially reduce employment opportunities, another source said.

Surveys made by the federal government showed prospective investment outlays of about

Record Employment

Employment across Canada during September continued at record levels despite the moves that have been made throughout the year by the Bank of Canada to curb inflationary tendencies. At Sept. 22 this year the number of persons with jobs was estimated at 5,676,000, a new peak for this period.

Unemployment for the September survey week totalled 97,000 or 1.7 per cent of the total 5,773,000 labor force. This unemployment figure compared with 138,000 who were out of work and seeking work at the same period in 1955.

Near record employment levels were maintained in the Pacific region during September, although the usual withdrawal of seasonal workers, particularly students from the labor force, caused some decline in the total numbers employed.

Persons with jobs in the Pacific region were estimated at 467,000 at Sept. 22, about 16,000 less than a month earlier, but 17,000 more than in September, 1955.

The peak of employment is an indication of the pressures at work within the economy, pressures that have not been too greatly reduced by the increased interest rates put into effect throughout the year by the Bank of Canada.

Surveys made by the federal government showed prospective investment outlays of about

Great Momentum

Such a proposed capital investment shows the tremendous momentum which lies behind the present expansion of the Canadian economy. That expansion, if allowed to continue, would exert considerable pressure on available supplies of materials, manpower and other economic resources.

It was desirable, the experts think, that the spending policies of Canadians emphasize restraint and prudence. Where this could not be achieved voluntarily the Bank of Canada, through higher interest rates and the imposition of retail credit curbs, could bring about some restraint.

The proposed enormous increase in investment planned for this year and determined by surveys in the late spring caused the federal government grave concern. It was to take place at a time when the export industries were producing more, when industries which produce goods and services for the consumer were also producing more and at a time when employment was at a record high level.

The government economic experts doubted whether in Canada there were the plants, the raw materials and the man-

$2,200 GIVEN TO CHEST AT DOCKYARD

Civilian employees at HMC Dockyard have contributed about $2,200 in the current Community Chest drive, Commodore J. B. Caldwell announced today.

One shop of 25 men has given or pledged $220.

The Dockyard drive is well ahead of last year, he said, when total returns from the 3,200 employees was just under $2,000.

In another shop, two men were away sick and the other employees contributed to the Chest on their behalf, "which was a very sound gesture," the commodore said.

power to achieve such a heavy increase in capital investment in full, along with the expected increase in exports, consumer goods and services and all the other things that are needed. The huge scale of investment in plant and equipment was also reflected in the very high level of imports and in the large inflow of non-resident money which in effect was financing the import surplus.

Government and bank economists feared that the total rate of spending, unless curbed, would run ahead of the ability of the economy to produce more goods and services.

To meet this situation what kind of fiscal and monetary policies were appropriate?

First the government sought to reduce its own demand for goods and services by pruning proposed governmental expenditures as set out in the 1956-57 estimates where possible. Capital programs of the various departments were reduced.

Phenomenal Boost

In the monetary field the increase in the demand for credit was phenomenal. Money has been in demand for many purposes but particularly to finance new business investment in plant, equipment and inventories during the past 16 months. A mounting demand for increased consumer credit has been reported.

The availability of funds has also been growing. Larger amounts are being saved out of the larger national income. More funds have been raised through new security issues and more capital has flowed into Canada from abroad. However, the increases in the supply of loanable funds has not kept pace with the increase in the demand for them. Consequently interest rates have risen.

The growth in the demand for loanable funds is the fundamental explanation of rising interest rates and the increasing tightness of money. That is the explanation of why it is more difficult and more costly today for borrowers to obtain the capital they need.

It would have been possible for the Bank of Canada to facilitate such an expansion of credit so that all the demands for money could have been satisfied without any increase in interest rates. But if this had been done there would then have been too much money competing for the available goods and inflationary price increases would have followed.

The Bank of Canada has been seeking to moderate the rate of increase in the expansion of credit so as to keep it in a reasonable relationship with the growth of production thereby by avoiding inflation, government sources said.

Saanich Blocks Vote on New Municipal Hall

A motion calling for a December referendum asking ratepayers whether they favor building an addition to the present Royal Oak Hall or construction of a joint hall with the city was defeated Monday night at a Saanich council meeting.

Reeve Arthur Ash and Councillors J. Ronald Grant, T. J. O'Neill and Ainslie Worthington opposed a referendum.

The reeve said a special committee has been formed to make a report on all phases of a joint city-Saanich municipal hall.

Now, he said, council wanted to go to the ratepayers without first hearing the committee's report.

MONEY AVAILABLE

The motion was made by Coun. Leslie Passmore, who asked that a referendum be placed before the electorate asking them if they favored the construction of an addition to the present hall to be paid out of existing funds, such as funds from reverted sale tax lands.

In addition, the councillor said the referendum could also ask ratepayers if they favored a joint municipal hall built in the city.

Coun. Passmore said he was presenting the motion to bring to a head the present discussions with the city over the construction of a joint hall.

Reeve Ash and Coun. Passmore clashed over the costs of a joint municipal hall.

The reeve said a joint hall would be less expensive for ratepayers and would provide all future needs for additional office space.

Coun. Passmore took the opposite view.

"My experience with amalgamation is that it will cost the taxpayers more money," he said. "We have sufficient funds on hand to look after all our office needs."

Coun. Passmore was supported by Couns. George Austin and Eugene Diespecker.

6-Month Term For Shooting At Logger

A Jordan River man who fired two shots at a logger was sentenced by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Assize Court Monday to six months in jail.

"You are lucky not to be accused of murder," the justice told Frank Joseph Miller who was found guilty of firing a firearm at Douglas Slater on May 18 at Jordan River, with intent to wound.

A jury deliberated for over one hour and a half and recommended leniency.

In sentencing the 58-year-old bridgeman, Mr. Justice Wilson said "you went berserk . . . completely lost control of yourself because you drank too much. I think you were out to kill this man."

TWO SHOTS
Evidence at the trial showed that Miller fired two shots with a shotgun at Slater who was working on a boom on Jordan River.

Slater, in his testimony, said after he heard the first shot he lay down flat on the log boom. "I could hear the pellets from both shots around and above me," he said.

Earlier, Slater said, Miller attempted to strike him and to hit him with a piece of wood with a nail attached.

The firing of the gun climaxed a quarrel over beer Slater was to give Miller in payment for a bicycle which he gave to him, the evidence showed.

Vancouver Opens Drive To Legalize Sunday Sport

(BUP and CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER — The city of Vancouver started the wheels turning today in a drive to get its charter amended so that legislation could be passed to permit commercialized Sunday sport.

Aldermen said they planned to ask the British Columbia government for such an amendment in the wake of a Supreme Court judgment Monday which quashed the city's new Sunday sport bylaw.

Mr. Justice A. E. Lord ruled the bylaw was invalid and in violation of the Lord's Day Act and the Sunday Observance Act. The ruling climaxed an intensive campaign which had been waged against the controversial legislation by Secretary Harold T. Allen of the Alberta and British Columbia chapters of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Introduction of the bylaw during the past summer brought almost immediate attack from Mr. Allen. It was passed by council on the strength of a city-wide referendum last December which showed residents in favor by a narrow margin of commercial sports on the Sabbath.

The Vancouver Mounties of the Pacific Coast Baseball League took advantage of the bylaw and staged three Sunday games in the latter part of the season.

UNANIMOUS MOTION
"Mr. Justice Lord's ruling reached council as it was sitting in regular session. Alderman Earle Adams immediately moved that the city go to the provincial government with its request for a charter amendment and the motion was passed unanimously."

In his judgment, Mr. Justice

Lord said that it is "beyond doubt" that even if the legislature could delegate to the city the authority to enact such a by-law, it has not succeeded in doing so.

"In any event," his lordship said, "the by-law seeks to make lawful that which the Lord's Day Act by section 6 says shall be unlawful."

PLAYING IN A CUPBOARD, 2½-YEAR-OLD DIES IN FIRE

HIGH RIVER, Alta. (CP)—A 2½-year-old High River boy suffocated in his burning home because searchers were unable to find him in a cupboard under the stairway where he had apparently crawled to play.

Douglas Comstock, second youngest in a family of nine children, was later found huddled under the stairway as far as he could crawl.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Mary Comstock, was taken to hospital and treated for shock. All the other children, six boys and two girls, escaped injury.

More Than a Super Robot

If politics makes strange bedfellows, I hope it isn't perverting the figure too much to suggest it creates unusual divorces.

You might have agreed had you listened to Friday night's Victoria College assembly speech by Mr. Ray Williston, recently separated from the educational career he espoused a quarter of a century ago at the local Normal School.

Mr. Williston, who is now minister of lands and forests and no longer minister of education, does not seem to want a divorce absolute. He has ceased to be officially wedded to schools, his first love. But it won't be surprising if he keeps humming "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

The assumption seemed to be at the college assembly that Mr. Williston had transferred from the field in which he was closely associated with the teaching processes to one in which he is identified with industry.

It seems to me he'll probably carry the influence of the former along with him. And it seems to me, too, that if he can extend his understanding of the purposes of education to industry, a very substantial gain will be made.

WHAT INDUSTRY WANTS

Industry wants more university-trained experts. It has to have them if it is to develop as it should in this high-speed age. The minister made that point clear with a simple analogy.

The man directing the operation of a bulldozer, he pointed out, has to be able to give quick and good direction to the person manipulating the equipment. And he has to do it much faster than the director who passed out orders to the forerunner of the bulldozer jockey, the man with the team of horses and the scraper. The bulldozer completes one job in a fraction of the time needed by the horse team, and the person riding it has to have instructions for the next project, or next process, immediately.

The technical director, in other words, has to be right on the bit. And the man with university training, and the mental stimulation expected of higher education, is wanted to fill the bill.

If you visualize that process and nothing more, you'll find a chill running up your spine. To me that's frightening. I imagine an automaton running a machine in response to stimuli provided by a technician skilled in the craft of manipulating the automaton.

It could happen. And we're told it does happen in certain parts of the world.

But, again, if I see the former minister of education in proper perspective, it isn't his idea of what should happen or what will happen if he has anything to say about it.

The former minister, by my assessment, knows that the man on the bulldozer isn't an automaton and the man who directs him isn't a mechanical brain. Both of them are persons. He'll want the director and the workman to appreciate that point.

For that reason I don't think he'll ever be satisfied with any move from industry or other sources to produce the skilled technician educated only in a specialized scientific field.

KEEP SAYING IT

That's what he was saying, if my ears were open, last Friday. I hope he keeps saying it.

Industry and business have every reason to call on the universities to produce more and more technical experts. They're needed and needed badly in a country developing as quickly as Canada.

But it will be a very sad day indeed if this search and demand for barrier-breakers in special fields becomes so obsessive that it diverts the university brain into too narrow channels.

Of course we want bridge builders, atom-crackers, pure and applied scientists. But we want each of them to be more than bridge builder, atom-cracker or scientist.

We want them to see beyond what is collectively called manpower and the working force. We want them to recognize that the mass of manpower is made up of individual men. We want them to encourage the men to have their dreams, to gaze at their visions, to know they are the pulsing, feeling and thinking ingredients of humanity.

I can do without master robots press-buttoning minor robots if the robots are to be conversion jobs from human beings. Maybe, by automation—and I'm certainly not against it—we might be able to produce bigger, better, shinier cars. If the price is the mechanization of man, I'd just as soon walk.

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Bell's Palsy

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Many persons ask me what Bell's palsy is. It is a weakening of the muscles on one side of the face, due usually to something wrong with the seventh cranial nerve which supplies the muscles. It comes out of the skull through a little conduit near the ear. Oftentimes the persons tell of a recent exposure of the side of the face to a cold wind, but in many cases we physicians do not know what the cause was. Sometimes it was an injury due to a tiny stroke up in the brain, and sometimes it was due to something that went wrong in the little canal through which the nerve comes out from the brain. Perhaps it was a virus that attacked the nerve.

If a person is fortunate, the paralysis will be slight, and it will disappear in a few months. In some cases in which the nerve is badly injured it will have to grow out again, and this will take many months. Sometimes recovery is never quite complete, so that always thereafter a physician can detect a weakening and lowering of one corner of the mouth. In rare cases the paralysis does not clear up, and then an operation can be performed to lift up the weakened corner of the mouth and to fasten it to the bone just below the eye on the affected side.

Occasionally, a person who has had one Bell's palsy will get another. Only once in my life did I see a man who had five attacks. He certainly had bad luck. His only good fortune was that he recovered well from all of the spells.

In those cases in which, with a paralysis of one side of the face, there came marked changes in the person's character and ability, I suspect that the injury was deep in the brain and not out in the nerve. Oftentimes a skilled neurologist, with the help of his special tests, can tell just where the injury was. I know of no drug which taken by mouth will hurry recovery.

NAUSEA

Many want to know what causes nausea. I think, often, it is associated with waves coming back up the digestive tract. That is why it is so marked a symptom when a person is trying to vomit. I suspect that at times it is produced in the brain or in the balancing mechanism in the ears. My experience with the first Cinerama, when I seemed to be going down a big amusement park roller-coaster, showed me that impressions taken in by the eyes can cause nausea. I remember a woman who became nauseated when she found an inchworm in her salad, and another who became terribly nauseated, and vomited when her beau proposed to her in a restaurant. I remember a Mohammedan student in this country who became badly nauseated when pranksters in his boarding-house told him that unknowingly he had just eaten pork.

A young woman patient of mine suffered from much nausea for some weeks after her beau eloped with another woman. Other women got nausea when they found that the husband was repellent to them.

I sometimes get nausea when very tired, and I know business men who, after a hard day in the office, will wake with nausea about two in the morning. This never comes when they are on a vacation.

If nausea is produced by some "disease in the digestive tract" it is usually low in the bowel. I have seen it come as the first symptom of an intestinal obstruction due, perhaps, to cancer. One very rarely sees nausea with diseases in the upper part of the digestive tract, such as in the gullet, stomach, duodenum (just below the stomach) or gallbladder. It is not a common symptom with ulcers of the stomach or duodenum. It can follow the eating of fat or some food to which the person is allergic.

Red Puppets Slipping From Kremlin Control

LONDON (AP)—Belief grew in western Europe today that the Soviet Communist Party has suffered a sharp decline in power and prestige in the dramatic political changes in Poland.

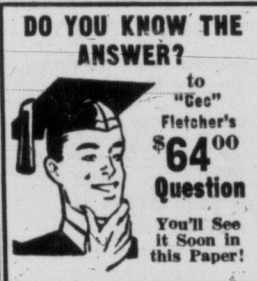

The Poles' insistence on a "national" development of their own brand of communism may foreshadow a breakup of Russia's iron political control over its eastern bloc.

Comment on the events in Poland has emphasized that the Polish leadership remains Communist. But the national development of the Communist ideology along lines exemplified by President Tito's party in Yugoslavia seems preferable, in the western view, to the system of totally puppet parties.

Moscow Radio broadcast a non-committal report on what happened in the Friday and Saturday sessions of the Polish United Workers' Communist party central committee, making no mention of the political background. It carefully prefixed the title "comrade" to the name of Wladyslaw Gomulka, branded and jailed as a Titoist in the Stalin era and now the new first secretary—boss—of the Polish party. Apparently Moscow wants the world to believe that it regards Gomulka as a Communist in good standing.

London's Communist paper, The Daily Worker, in a tone of alarm, says:

"Every Communist or socialist, inside or outside Poland, must be conscious that class enemies are watching the development of events. These enemies are hoping that divisions in the popular ranks may give them an opportunity for a reactionary comeback."

Bid Opposed By Steel Users

OTTAWA (CP)—Opposition to higher tariff protection proposed by Canada's steel industry was expressed Monday before the tariff board both by Canadian steel users and Britain's steel producers.

The Canadian Institute of Steel Construction, Inc., said an increase in tariffs to the extent sought by Canada's basic steel manufacturers would put firms making products from steel in a less competitive position with foreign producers.

The institute, which represents companies that make items used in building bridges, heavy construction, pressure tanks and so on, said the Canadian steel industry can supply only about one-third the structural steel and about one-half the steel plate used in Canada.

The treat that lasts all year

Apples and goblin-time just naturally go together. But nowadays, any time is apple time, thanks to protective paper fruit wraps and boxes. Paper helps our growers and farmers market their crops far afield... enables families across Canada to enjoy fruits and vegetables all the time, not just "in season."

As Canada's population grows (15,000,000 today; 25,000,000 forecast by 1975), distribution of the products of our fields and factories to shops and homes also grows in volume and complexity. The demand for packaging materials, which has risen steeply in the last ten years, is expected to double within the next twenty-five. Crown Zellerbach is serving in this national expansion by developing new packaging uses, meeting fresh demands for these essential commodities.

For example, our new corrugating machine, the largest in Canada, is now in operation at Richmond, B.C., producing a sheet of paperboard almost 8 feet wide and 300 feet long every minute.

Crown Zellerbach, a paper-maker in Western Canada for 39 years, contributes to better living for Canadians through better packaging.

Skilled designers at Crown Zellerbach's Richmond plant create boxes to protect products which vary as widely as hats, fish and wire. Last year, our company produced over 24,000,000 boxes for use in Western Canada.

5th Straight Loss Paced by Coppers

Prices improved a bit today during closing trading on the Toronto Stock Market but the rally was not enough to pull the market up from its sixth straight setback in which coppers were predominantly lower.

The market at New York dawdled at a slightly lower level today. While there was no outstanding pressure in any section, pivotal rails showed a considerable number of fractional losses as profits continued to be taken from the good rise of last week.

AT TORONTO base metals were off a bit more than 2 points as Hudson Bay, a key index stock, lost 2 1/2 points and other senior issues slid back fractionally. Western oils were off about a half-point on their index.

Ford A and Imperial Oil dipped 1 1/2 points among index industrial issues. Other point losers included Du Pont of Canada, Canadian Vickers, Interprovincial Pipe Line, Powell River and Ridgeway. MacMillan & Bloedel A lost 5 points on a 25-share sale. Goodyear Tire gained 3 points as the company declared an extra dividend. McColl added a point and Toronto-Dominion Bank %.

Bethlehem led coppers lower with a 35-cent decline. Copper Rand was down 30c and half a dozen other issues lost between 15c and 25c. East Sullivan and Eastern Mining dipped 15c in junior base metals.

AT NEW YORK prices of Canadian issues were lower. Aluminum Ltd. was off %.

Hudson Bay Mining slipped %.

Canadian Pacific and Grange Mining were % lower. Walker-Goodman advanced %.

AT MONTREAL industrial trading activity picked up slightly near the close but was still quiet as the stock exchange drifted lower. Price movements were mainly fractional but a few changes ranged to a point.

AT LONDON the stock market continued firm today with buyers showing interest in better-class issues. There also was some speculative interest on the market.

British funds rallied on small buying after initial dullness. The feature in industrials was the further advance in cotton textiles on reports of increasing business at Manchester where increasing business appeared to be developing.

Electrical equipment was quiet. Royal Bank of Canada was firm on increased dividend distribution.

Oil shares were quiet but Shell Trinidad and Ultramar were firm. Gold shares were brighter. Coppers were irregular.

AT VANCOUVER the market was active with prices slightly lower. Vantor sold 13,800 shares between $1.17 and $1.22.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

The hiker who survived six days in a cave on Mount Seymour attributes the fact he is still alive to his training as a Boy Scout.

So he went into the woods with two companions; and amongst them they had no small axe or even knife; no waterproof container for matches and, in fact, no matches; no flashlight; no compass; not even a chocolate bar on which to nibble; and when they found they were lost, they separated.

So this is being prepared?

The only possible good which comes of such an episode is that it may contain a lesson for others.

And in the local area, it is wise to remember the Sooke hills can be plenty tough, too.

Let us have nobody going around getting lost. Not even a hunter.

Did you notice the phrase above "when they found they were lost?"

Wonderful, just wonderful, is the English language. Don't know what I'd do without it.

Don't know what to do with it, either.

I see where the law of supply and demand is affecting the price of parking tickets.

It appears the authorities can't sell enough at $2.50, so they are reducing the price to $1.00.

Let us keep this a buyers' market, fellow-parkers, and see if we can't get the price down to three for a quarter.

Yes, it is true I am no longer wearing my summertime straw hat.

It is also true I am wearing a funny little winter hat.

The reason I am no longer wearing my summertime straw hat is, my fellow workers became tired of watching it disintegrate gradually in the heavy dews we have been having lately.

So they formed a committee to jump up and down on my summertime straw hat to complete the process of disintegration.

Following which, the committee ceremoniously cremated the remains.

Thus I was forced to get a wintertime hat, and, due to a combination of circumstances largely set in motion by my favorite wife, I am now wearing the funniest funny little hat I have ever worn.

It is, I am told, the very latest style, and is called a "Flat-top."

But please do not become excited because this Old Man is wearing the very latest style.

The flat-top was the latest style in Mr. Pickwick's day, too.

And if it was good enough for Mr. Pickwick, it is good enough for me.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

Charge of careless driving against Arthur Thomas Bink, 1443 Stroud, was dismissed in city police court today by Magistrate H. C. Hall.

Binks was charged after his car was struck in the intersection of Hillside and Quadra by another auto as he attempted to make a left turn.

Magistrate Hall said evidence given by independent witnesses during the trial indicated the oncoming car was travelling at an excessive rate of speed.

Theft of a safe containing $100 from a home in Saanich is being investigated by police.

John F. McColl, 2829 Dysart, reported the safe was taken while he and his wife were visiting friends Sunday evening.

The thieves must have been hefty. The safe weighed 175 pounds.

George March, 19, of 1036 Craigdarroch, was fined $15 in city police court today for being a minor in possession of liquor. He was caught with a bottle of rum in his pocket.

Alexandra Lodge, Sons of England, will meet at Williams Hall, 749 Broughton Street, Thursday at 8 p.m.

Allan Ford, 39, an employee of the municipality for nine years, and secretary of Saanich Town Planning Commission, was appointed by Saanich council Monday as assistant municipal clerk.

The appointment and new position to assist the municipal clerk was recommended by the comptroller-treasurer, John Tribe.

Council also approved Mr. Tribe's recommendation for a complete overhaul of the trades licence department administration system.

'GOODWILL SPECIAL' TO CARRY ROTARIANS

Four steel day-coaches were due to arrive in Victoria today to transport Rotarians and their wives to Nanaimo Wednesday in an inter-city "Goodwill Special."

About 600 are expected to converge on Nanaimo from the Island's 10 Rotary Clubs.

Victoria Rotary, which has 175 members, has booked 200 seats on the train, leaving the E & N depot at 3:05 p.m. Wednesday.

Inter-city chairman Jack Housez said less than half the Victoria tickets are sold, and urged members not to leave bookings until the last minute. A similar trip two years ago was "a smash success," he said.

Mayor Percy Scurreh, a former director of Rotary International, will take the city's greetings north. Heading local Rotary executives will be vice-president Maurice Green.

Easter Dedication For Mission Boats

Archbishop Sexton to Conduct Ceremony For New 'Columbia' and 'John Antle'

The two new vessels of the Columbia Coast Mission will be dedicated here in a public ceremony by Archbishop Harold E. Sexton Easter Week, April 10-17.

Island Entries Accepted for Color Display

Thirteen Vancouver Island slides have been selected for a public display of color transparencies entered in the 16th Victoria International Salon of Photography.

Dates for the show will be announced later.

Island entries will be "Autumn Glory," by Colin Gibson, 855 Cowper; "Silver Birch" (both), by A. T. Gray, 3928 Winton; "Spring" and "Wallflowers," by William E. Nye, 1722 Duchess; "Copperite," David S. Preston, 1254 Tattersall; "Mum's Reflection," Percy A. Trowsdale, 3035 Albany; "Pink Ladies," Stephen M. Jones, 2382 Lincoln; "Harmonious Design," J. M. Henderson, 730 Vancouver; "Oil Slick" (unanimous selection), John R. Fawcus, 1013 Vancouver; "Driftwood No. 6" (unanimous selection), H. A. Dreany, Lake Cowichan; "Autumn Colors" and "Camp in the Glen," M. C. Wright, Lakes Road, Duncan.

The dedication ceremony will mark the first time the little fleet has been in Victoria together.

Mr. Greene last visited Victoria two years ago aboard the old John Antle.

The Anglican mission ships are one of the 19 projects supported by Victoria Community Chest dollars, the only one outside the community.

Mr. Greene will skipper the new vessel.

Chief-Led Delegation Appeals to Cabinet

A delegation of 27 B.C. Indians held a pow-wow with the provincial government today in a bid to obtain equal liquor rights for the province's 36,000 natives.

The group was led by gnarled Mathias Joe, chief of the Capilano band, who was decked out in full regalia.

PAULL SPEAKS

Chief Mathias saluted Premier Bennett and members of the cabinet, then indicated that Andy Paull, president of the North American Indian Brotherhood, would act as spokesman.

Mr. Paull presented a brief to the cabinet asking for repeal of section 75 of the B.C. Liquor Act which prohibits Indians from entering a liquor store.

"What we are asking are the same privileges as everybody else," Mr. Paull said earlier in an interview.

CAN BE EXTENDED

"The federal government has ruled that this privilege may be extended to Indians at the request of the provincial government. We want the B.C. government to make the specific request to Ottawa."

Indians now can only buy beer in taverns, and it must be consumed there.

The brief also stated that "the benefits intended to be given to the electors through the imposition of the 5 per cent sales tax is denied the Indians of B.C. to the extent enjoyed by the electors who do not reside on an Indian reserve."

NO SALES TAX.

The cabinet was asked to agree "that an Indian residing on an Indian reserve who is a registered Indian shall not pay a sales tax when the goods are delivered to an Indian reserve."

It was pointed out that this tax exemption for Indians is now in force in Quebec.

The government was asked for an appropriation so that beaver may be restocked in certain areas for the benefit of native Indians, as is now done in Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec.

"While many of our people now find employment in the many industries in British Columbia, there are yet some who cannot find this kind of employment. And their only means of earning a livelihood is by trapping and hunting."

"We ask that special areas for Indians be allocated and that they shall not be discriminated against when trying to secure positions as guides."

CONSERVE INDIANS

"We ask that any regulation which impedes this avocation be repealed as it is necessary to conserve Indians as well as animals."

"The diversion of streams has rendered extinct the former hunting and trapping areas and this denial must of necessity be adequately replaced, or compensation given to the Indians affected."

In a reference to the B.C. centennial in 1958, the brief said "The policy of the British has always been to first meet the natives in council for the extinguishment of their title to the land."

TRAFFIC FINES

In city court today: Ross Joseph Randle, 716 Wilson, $35 for careless driving when he collided with a parked car on Fisgard Oct. 12 while looking for a store.

Frank Best, 659 Niagara, $35 and licence suspension, careless driving Oct. 6 when he hit a wooden barricade near the Lookout on Dallas Road and plowed over a lawn. Best told police he was going home from a party.

George Adams, 3650 Elliston, $15, falling to set his hand brake while parked. Adams' car caused $175 damage when it rolled across Douglas Street in front of the Strathcona Hotel into a parked car on the other side of the street.

Kenneth L. Pyette, 1232 Yates, $15, driving through a crosswalk while it was occupied by two children.

Percy E. Delorme, HMCS Athabasca, $15, inadequate brakes.

In Esquimalt court Monday: William Harrison, 1141 McKenzie, $35 and licence suspension when he was convicted of careless driving Sept. 24 when he was involved in a collision with a truck at Tillicum and Craigflower.

Real Joseph Wellie Potvin, HMCS Naden, $25, no driver's licence.

Traps Missing

Thirty of the traps were mysteriously missing when he returned to garner the catch. But the "take" was far above his expectations.

The expedition encountered seasonal heavy weather, riding out gales of up to 80 miles an hour. The wind moderated long enough for two landings on the rugged island.

Fragile From Rot

At present most are fragile from rot which has crept up through the soil. Unlike the carefully-engineered "tallest totem," the originals were set directly into the soil, and over the years moisture has crept through them. In many cases, only the outer shells remain.

But the research done on the present expedition, plus existence of the authentic totems themselves, will ensure complete accuracy of reconstruction by today's carvers.

A second phase of expedition's work is also a link with the past.

Charles Gulget, museum curator of birds and animals, succeeded in trapping 22 white-footed mice, which he regards as of extreme value in evolutionary research.

"They are small enough to be easily handled," he states.

"They have a definite place in evolution, and we hope to learn much from studying them."

Mr. Gulget set 200 traps in the meadow and forest surrounding the deserted Indian village to catch his 22 specimens.

107 Years Old

The "youngest" totem was estimated at 70 years old; the oldest, according to Mr. Duff, is at least 107.

The museum party, which left here Oct. 15 aboard HMCS Brockville, will use the photographs and finely-detailed sketches as material for reconstructed carvings at Thunderbird Park, Victoria, and other B.C. centres to bolster this province's "Totemland" appeal for tourists.

Mr. Duff has long wanted to visit Anthony Island, and investigate what may be the last major "stand" of authentic totems in B.C. In this, he has been quietly prodded by Mungo Martin, whose art was handed down to him through generations, and who proved his skill as chief carver on the successful "world's tallest totem" project.

The provincial anthropologist hopes to have a second expedition organized next spring to bring out some of the totems, and put them into dry storage to preserve them.

Practical Yet Attractive Are Large Hearth Brooms

By PENNY SAVER

A crackling fire in the fireplace is a cozy sight, and warming hands and toes before the homey blaze is really something special. Whether you're spending an evening at home with a book or having a few people in, a little fire in the living room or den is a must. If you object a little and say that a fireplace can be so messy, then you haven't seen the bright and handy hearth brooms. Long straw brooms, they have carved twist handles, of wood with leather hang-up thongs. A whisk of this broom, which comes in either green or maroon-red, and sparks, wood or dust are neatly brushed into the fireplace. It's so attractive that you won't be hiding it out of sight. Hang it alongside the fireplace where it's easy to reach. They're selling at $2.95.

You've seen the handy slates that can be used for jotting notes or reminders. Write on the plastic-covered surface with a leadless pencil and the impression is visible under the plastic. When you wish to erase the writing, just lift the underneath surface, separating it from the part upon which you wrote, and the impressions disappear. You can now buy these slates to keep golf scores and bridge scores, too. Clearly marked lines and sections for either game are outlined on the slates. These slates are metal-backed and rimmed. When you wish to erase the tally, pull out the centre section and push it back in again. Golf score boards are 49 cents. Larger ones, plain or marked for bridge, are 69 cents. A magnetized metal and plastic "pencil" especially for these slates will be 39 cents. These are 39 cents.

Since bridge came into the conversation, let me tell you about some attractive bridge ash trays I found. Figured glass in the shapes of hearts, clubs, spades or diamonds are just the things for your bridge parties. They'd also make good card prizes. They're just 19 cents each.

Here's another ash tray that is really a part of a coaster. Just put your glass in the round trough and next to it is a crescent-shaped ash tray especially for you. These, too, are 19 cents each.

Book matches with the familiar playing card symbols on them are your answer to the perpetual question, "Do you have a match, please?" Eight in a plastic package are 37 cents. Napkins with novel designs on them for your bridge parties may also be purchased in different sized packages. Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where to find the items mentioned here in the column... it will save you from walking around town looking for them.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Got a Skin Problem? Here's Advice for You

It is too bad that we cannot shed our skins once a year and bloom forth minus wrinkles, blackheads, pimples, large pores or whatever other complexion defect we may have.

A constant stream of letters asking for help in skin troubles passes across my desk. This is understandable because a lovely complexion can enhance irregular, or even homely, features.

Many of these conditions are the direct result of neglect or incorrect care. For instance, the young woman who has an oily skin may fail to wash her face in soap and water several times a day. The little oil glands then become packed with oil and dirt and cause blackheads.

From here on she probably picks at her face and squeezes the blackheads until they become infected and cause pimples. She then picks at the pimples and spreads the infection to other pores.

The woman who has a dry skin can profit by cream cleansing as well as oily creams, for lubrication. The one with an oily skin does not need creams but does require frequent soap and water cleansing. She should also use an astringent, while this may be too drying for a dry complexion.

Large pores harass many women. These usually occur when the skin is oily and the little oil glands are expanded and lax. The habit of leaving make-up on for long periods without cleansing may be a factor. If you have large pores, wash your face with soap and water. A complexion brush may be helpful because of the stimulation it provides. Keep your astringent in the icebox and apply it after rinsing and drying the face.

If you have this kind of complexion cut down on fats in the diet and leave off all rich, heavy, highly seasoned foods. A well-developed case of acne should be treated by a skin specialist. Much has been learned about this condition during relatively recent years. Sometimes hormone therapy is used.

Today minor acne scars can be removed and even deep ones can be greatly minimized. There is a lot of available help for skin problems from the medical profession as well as from the cosmetic counters.

If you would like my leaflet No. 47 "Your Outer Coating (care of skin)" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mammoth Shower Party Honored Kay Welsh Prior to Her Marriage

SOOKE—Miss Kay Welsh, who was married Saturday to J. van Ek, was honored recently by fellow members of the Sunday school and choir of Knox Presbyterian Church with a shower in Sooke Community Hall. Hostesses were Mrs. K. Shepherd, Mrs. F. Richardson, Mrs. R. Wray, Mrs. W. Sharp, Mrs. H. Wadams, Mrs. J. Dunn, Mrs. J. Jackman, Mrs. S. West, Mrs. C. Cyr, Mrs. J. Linley, Mrs. R. Kendrew, Mrs. M. Gibson, Mrs. R. Gibson, Mrs. A. Brooks, Mrs. E. Butler, Mrs. C. Richardson, Mrs. V. Richardson, Miss M. Gould, and the Misses Marilyn Miles and Barbara Lewis.

Mrs. K. Shepherd presented a corsage of split white carnations and red rosebuds to the honor guest, who was escorted through a trellised arch by Miss Lewis to a table on which stood vases of bronze chrysanthemums and the many gifts. Mrs. E. Welsh, stepmother of the bride, and Mrs. H. van Ek, mother of the groom, received corsages of red and white carnations, and a corsage of small yellow chrysanthemums was presented to Mrs. W. J. Welsh, the bride-elect's grandmother.

Guests enjoyed a buffet supper served from a table centred with an imitation wedding cake flanked by little choir-boys and pink candles in silver candlesticks. The mothers of the bride and groom-elect presided at the urns.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. H. van Ek, Mrs. Slots and Mrs. J. Hess from Port Alberni; Mrs. H. van Ek Jr. and Mrs. Storey, Victoria, and Mrs. D. Cook, Saanichton.

Sooke guests were Mrs. H. Lewis, Mrs. J. Dunn Jr., Mrs. Graignic, Mrs. Hatchkiss, Mrs. R. Bluin, Mrs. H. Pontius, Mrs. A. K. Feltus, Mrs. G. Sutar, Mrs. G. Nixon, Mrs. N. Goodwin, Mrs. P. Civilian employees at HMC Dockyard have contributed about $2,200 in the current Community Chest drive, Commodore J. B. Caldwell announced today.

One shop of 25 men has given or pledged $220.

The Dockyard drive is well ahead of last year, he said, when total returns from the 3,200 employees was just under $2,000.

In another shop, two men were away sick and the other employees contributed to the Chest on their behalf "which was a very sound gesture," the commodore said.

Saanich Blocks Vote on New Municipal Hall

A motion calling for a December referendum asking ratepayers whether they favor building an addition to the present Royal Oak Hall or construction of a joint hall with the city was defeated Monday night at a Saanich council meeting.

Reeve Arthur Ash and Councilors J. Ronald Grant, T. J. O'Neill and Ainslie Worthington opposed a referendum.

The reeve said a special committee has been formed to make a report on all phases of a joint city-Saanich municipal hall.

Now, he said, council wanted to go to the ratepayers without first hearing the committee's report.

MONEY AVAILABLE

The motion was made by Coun. Leslie Passmore, who asked that a referendum be placed before the electorate asking them if they favored the construction of an addition to the present hall to be paid out of existing funds, such as funds from reverted sale tax lands.

In addition, the councillor said the referendum could also ask ratepayers if they favored a joint municipal hall built in the city.

Coun. Passmore said he was presenting the motion to bring to a head the present discussions with the city over the construction of a joint hall.

Reeve Ash and Coun. Passmore clashed over the costs of a joint municipal hall.

The reeve said a joint hall would be less expensive for ratepayers and would provide all future needs for additional office space.

Coun. Passmore took the opposite view.

"My experience with amalgamation is that it will cost the taxpayers more money," he said. "We have sufficient funds on hand to look after all our office needs."

Coun. Passmore was supported by Couns. George Austin and Eugene Diespecker.

High Winter Employment Forecast

By VICTOR J. MACKIE, Times Ottawa Correspondent
OTTAWA—Employment is expected to continue at a high level throughout the winter months regardless of the federal government's anti-inflationary credit policies, informed government sources said Monday.

Charges by Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia that the federal government was "deliberately turning its back on a policy of full employment in Canada this winter," were flatly denied here. Mr. Bennett suggested that the new Bank of Canada discount rate of 3½ per cent would have the effect of stifling employment.

The inflationary pressures are so great within the Canadian economy at this time that the Bank of Canada's increase in its rate is not expected to materially reduce employment opportunities, another source said.

There was bound to be a decline in employment during the winter when house construction for example stops with the onset of sub-zero temperatures in the prairies. But plans are being laid here for extensive campaigns to stimulate winter employment. They may result in one of the biggest winter publicity campaigns of the kind ever experienced in Canada.

Record Employment

Employment across Canada during September continued at record levels despite the moves that have been made throughout the year by the Bank of Canada to curb inflationary tendencies. At Sept. 22 this year the number of persons with jobs was estimated at 5,676,000, a new peak for this period.

Unemployment for the September survey week totalled 97,000 or 1.7 per cent of the total 5,773,000 labor force. This unemployment figure compared with 138,000 who were out of work and seeking work at the same period in 1955.

Near record employment levels were maintained in the Pacific region during September, although the usual withdrawal of seasonal workers, particularly students from the labor force, caused some decline in the total numbers employed. Persons with jobs in the Pacific region were estimated at 467,000 at Sept. 22, about 16,000 less than a month earlier, but 17,000 more than in September, 1955.

The peak of employment is an indication of the pressures at work within the economy, pressures that have not been too greatly reduced by the increased interest rates put into

6-Month Term For Shooting At Logger

A Jordan River man who fired two shots at a logger was sentenced by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Assize Court Monday to six months in jail.

"You are lucky not to be accused of murder," the justice told Frank Joseph Miller who was found guilty of firing a firearm at Douglas Slater on May 18 at Jordan River, with intent to wound.

A jury deliberated for over one hour and a half and recommended leniency.

In sentencing the 58-year-old bridgeman, Mr. Justice Wilson said "you went berserk... completely lost control of yourself because you drank too much. I think you were out to kill this man."

Evidence at the trial showed that Miller fired two shots with a shotgun at Slater who was working on a boom on Jordan River.

Slater, in his testimony, said after he heard the first shot he lay down flat on the log boom. "I could hear the pellets from both shots around and above me," he said.

Earlier, Slater said, Miller attempted to strike him and to hit him with a piece of wood with a nail attached.

Noisy Demonstrators Demand
Independence From Moscow Rule

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP)—Shouts of "Out with the Russian troops" and "We want a new government with Imre Nagy" were raised when tens of thousands of Hungarian university students, workers and off-duty soldiers demonstrated today in Budapest's Bem Square.

... WARSAW

Workers party politburo in a purge of Stalinists.

The Katyn forest was the scene of the machine-gunning of 10,000 Polish officers in 1940, before Russia entered the war. Similar demonstrations were reported from Stettin and the university city of Krakow. All three towns are near the Polish border with Communist East Germany.

The meeting of the Polish parliamentary body, called the Sejm, was its first since anti-Stalinist Wladyslaw Gomulka took control of the ruling Polish Workers (Communist) party and promised to free this Communist country from Soviet domination.

The four-week session had been scheduled before the shake-up in party leadership. The legislators, elected without opposition four years ago, are due to be replaced in new elections Dec. 16.

A government shake-up, placing all the organs of the state firmly in the hands of the new party leaders, may be announced through parliament in a few days.

The reorganization possibly will include the removal of Rokossovsky as defence minister. Parliament also is expected to take other popular steps, including new economic measures aimed at raising the standard of living. Gomulka has indicated that private enterprise may be called on to help solve the critical housing shortage.

Meanwhile it was reported at London that the public prosecutor of Poland has ordered a revision of all the indictments of those charged in last June's Poznan hunger riots. At the same time, the prosecutor moved to have the court release all persons now held in custody but not charged with murder or robbery.

WASHINGTON (AP)—High American officials fear Russia may yet take drastic action—possibly including force—to smash Communist Poland's drive for independence. In their view, the most dangerous phase of the struggle for control of Poland is just beginning, with the Kremlin apparently undecided about its counter-move.

Car-Bombing Victim Loses Insurance Bid

(From CP Dispatches)
VANCOUVER—An insurance suit launched by Jacob Leonhard after his car was blown up on Feb. 15, 1955, was dismissed in Supreme Court.

Leonhard lost a leg as well as his car when a booby-trap bomb exploded in his parked car.

A year later, he started suit against British Law Insurance Company, Ltd., London, Eng., and All Risk Insurance Agencies, Ltd., Vancouver, to collect for the loss of his car under a policy he took out about six months before the explosion.

K. L. Yuill applied to Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in Supreme Court chambers to have the action dismissed because it had not been proceeded with.

RAINFALL RECORDS

VANCOUVER—Two records for October rainfall in Vancouver were set by last week's downpour.

During the 24 hours ending at 4.30 p.m. Saturday, 2.35 inches fell at the airport, breaking the previous 24-hour record for October of 1.77 inches, set Oct. 9, 1940.

In downtown Vancouver 3.96 inches was recorded, breaking the previous record of 3.13 inches, set Oct. 17, 1940.

Friday rainfall in Vancouver was 27 of an inch less than the all-time high of 4.23 recorded Dec. 14-15, 1923.

a comment from Tunisian information minister Ben Yamedin that the planned "peace conference" in Tunis now "threatens to turn into a council of war".

As he spoke, Moslem youths waving Algerian national flags broke through police lines in Tunis, yanked Europeans from their cars and burned the vehicles. The rioters wrenched the plaster seal from the French consulate, broke it up and threw the pieces at passing Europeans. Several were injured.

French troops were alerted for action if Tunisian authorities were unable to maintain order.

In Casablanca, hundreds of young Moslem men and women wound through the European quarter, chanting such slogans as "Liberty for Algeria" and "Frenchmen go home, Algeria is not yours."

General strikes halted trade and industry throughout Tunisia. Buses and streetcars were stopped by strikes in the major cities of Morocco.

Russian Loggers See 'Cat' Show

NANAIMO—Visiting Russian timbermen, touring Canada under leadership of Russian minister of forest industries G. M. Orlov, today paid their second visit to Vancouver Island with a tour of Comox Logging and Railway Co. Ltd. operations at Nanaimo Lakes.

Under guidance of Gordon Naylor, camp foreman, the party visited one of the company's "cat shows," where yarding of logs is done with a large rubber-tired diesel-powered tractor.

They were particularly impressed by the nine miles of paved road leading from the camp to the woods operations. Wednesday the visiting party will visit Northwest Bay division of MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd., south of Parksville, where the company operates a fully modern logging camp.

'WE WANT DUPLESSIS'

Police Disperse Milling Students

QUEBEC (CP)—Five radio cars "milled" with city police moved in shortly before noon today to disperse a milling, singing, placard-waving group of students marching through the downtown district.

With sirens wailing, the cars overtook the happy marchers and police asked them to break up. The students continued on their way and police concentrated on keeping traffic in order.

The students, seeking to place demands for more provincial student aid before Premier Duplessis, followed a route that led them back to the university.

The parade followed a 2½-hour demonstration on the grounds of the legislative buildings where 1,000 students gathered to urge the premier to provide more financial help for students.

Mr. Duplessis, who recently rejected federal aid to universities, quietly arrived at the legislature unnoticed by the students.

Problem for the Kremlin

THE PROBLEM NOW FACING the Russians in Poland appears to be a crucial one for Kremlin policy. Poland's so far successful effort to throw off Moscow's domination and establish its own communist state can be met in only three ways. It can be ignored by Russia—an unthinkable proposition. It can be opposed by diplomatic means—and Mr. Khrushchev's failure last weekend seems to be the answer to this approach. Or it can be met by force—and this appears to be the most likely Soviet reaction.

But that remedy itself would precipitate a whole epidemic of ills. It would advertise to all the world that the current Russian attitude of smiles, handclaps and peaceful co-existence is only that—an attitude, adopted for political purposes. It would prove that the new Moscow policy, the anti-Stalin liberalization of domestic and international behaviour, will not stand up to a vital test—that force is still the basic relationship between Russia and its "free" satellites.

There would be wider repercussions. Czechoslovakia and Hungary, already stirring with unrest, would understand the full implications of Soviet armed intervention. They would recognize that the friendly words mean nothing when the Red Army must always be the final answer.

Marshal Tito, who successfully made the break years ago, would be confirmed in his action in the eyes of all non-Russian communists. He could easily achieve a place as a leader to whom other communist states, desiring national independence might turn. Even Egypt's President Nasser would be moved to take a second look at the power whose support he is courting.

There could be even more striking effects within the Kremlin. Already Mr. Khrushchev is reported to have lost ground in the constant struggle for power that is part and parcel of the Soviet system of government. The ensuing developments might well cause violent reactions within the Moscow clique where major policy can undergo overnight reversals.

But whatever the cost it appears that Russia must hold its satellites, and particularly Poland. The current revolt cannot be allowed to succeed.

The plains of Poland have always been, militarily speaking, the Achilles heel of Russia. Not until the end of the Second World War was Russia able to place a defensive army to the west of this avenue of invasion.

Now, it will not relinquish its position easily. It will not let go of East Germany, its foremost outpost in Europe, its chief continental bargaining counter and perhaps the key to the future of the rest of Germany. And to retain East Germany it must maintain its supply lines through Poland.

Apart from the East German contact, loss of Poland or substantial weakening of its dependence on Russia would imperil the whole system of buffer states with which the communist Soviet has fenced itself off from the "capitalist" West.

In this light, the emergency meeting between Marshal Tito and top Soviet leaders a few days ago takes on new meaning. Was Tito's aid being sought, or bought, to meet the mounting crisis? Was the Yugoslav leader being warned, or coaxed, away from a resumption of his old dream of a Balkan alliance that would embrace his country, Rumania, Hungary, Bulgaria, and perhaps others?

The Poles are a proud and tenacious nation. They have been crushed many times in the march of history, yet always they have sprung back. Today, there is no doubt that the Red Army could smash the Polish forces and replace the Gomulka regime with a puppet administration.

Such action was bad enough in the days of Stalin. Today, under the new policy, it could only be construed as an act of desperation. It could mean the beginning of the end of Russian imperialism.

Another factor may also be imposed. Peking recently is reported to have delivered what amounts to a warning to Russia not to undertake any military adventures. Russia cannot risk losing the support of the vast communist land on its south-eastern flank. This situation must play a part in any decision Moscow makes in regard to its European problem.

It is much too early yet to say that the satellite system is faltering, or that Russia faces a significant defeat. But the West will do well to watch closely the currents now manifesting themselves. Danger, as well as gain, could develop.

Pressed too hard, Russia might reply by fomenting trouble between communism and the West which would drive the communist satellites back to Russia's side. Or Moscow could produce diversionary dangers in some other quarter of the globe which would relegate the satellite's revolt to the background. Either development would vitally affect the West, and the peace of the world.

Classes for the Retarded

WHILE THE BROAD PROBLEMS of education—financing, school overcrowding and an insufficient supply of suitable university material—occupy the attention of the nation and the province, a courageous experiment in a new field is proceeding in Victoria.

This is the effort made by the Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children—which has counterparts in certain other B.C. centres—to provide some form of group training for young people unable to cope with regular school work or even remedial courses.

There are two such classes operating here. In each are a dozen children, ranging in age from 6 to 18. Under special teachers they take part in short sessions daily, one group in the morning, one in the afternoon, in premises made available to them by St. Barnabas church.

This is a task calling for unique abilities on the part of special teachers. The children concerned are not capable of meeting the demands made on the ordinary pupil, even the slow learner. But there lie within them some potentialities. The school is attempting to develop these human capacities and, after a few weeks' operation, is showing certain gains.

This is a brave concept aimed at helping a group on which little, if any, joint training has been attempted here before. Courageous parents have come together to make a place in society for young people who can never be like other children. With the co-operation of the school board, an understanding provincial government is providing per pupil finances for the classes equivalent to money spent on the education of students in elementary school.

In time the association hopes to acquire permanent and more suitable quarters for the courses—accommodation where a heartening job of rehabilitation can be undertaken more effectively for the retarded.

Progress is being made and a community which can furnish such facilities, a community which is prepared to give sympathetic acceptance and help to the children concerned, earns universal respect.

A Heavy Blow at the Enemy

WITH PROPER SCIENTIFIC caution, medical officials are making only conservative claims for the effectiveness of the Salk polio vaccine used in Canada this year. But according to a Canadian Press survey recently conducted there was less than half as much polio in the country this year as in 1955.

A cool summer and normal fluctuations in the incidence of the disease are given partial credit for this happy development. But the widespread use of the vaccine also played a part, as yet to be exactly determined. One obvious effect was that of the 435 cases recorded this year—in contrast to 867 in 1955—very few were among children who had been given the immunization, and of these nearly all were mild.

Ontario and Quebec showed only slight decreases in the number of cases, and a study of the trend over the last five years is now being made to account for this. In British Columbia, where primary grade school children were almost unanimous in attending the vaccination clinics, 66 cases were reported, compared with 163 last year. Of these only 22 were paralytic, whereas in 1955 99 cases were in this category.

These are preliminary figures but they appear to indicate a definite trend. They may take great hope from them that this killing and crippling disease will eventually be sent the way of yellow fever and diphtheria.

Down the Home Stretch

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

On the Broad Highway

HAVING recently driven a couple of thousand miles over British Columbia's highways, I can appreciate Mr. Gagliardi's problems. Truly they are daunting. Though immense sums are being spent and magnificent stretches of road are being constructed, we can hardly hope to have an adequate highway system within a dozen years and I sometimes wonder if Mr. Gagliardi's boundless energies will last that long.

One fact strikes the traveler immediately—the main traffic route across British Columbia will not be the Trans-Canada Highway, as intended, but the Southern Provincial Highway, leaving the trunk road at Hope and cutting in a straight line across the province to Alberta.

THIS probably was assured once a former government (which is commonly supposed to have done nothing about highways) built the Hope-Princeton road in that natural route to the interior identified by Governor Douglas and laid down by the original Dewdney Trail.

When the late Ernest Carson built the Hope-Princeton road he set the pattern of future transportation. Then he confirmed it by piercing the second range east of the Okanagan by the magnificent freeway across Anarchist Mountain to Grand Forks. His successor has begun to conquer the third barricade over the two appalling summits that lie between Grand Forks and Rossland.

THOUGH no man in his senses attempts to cross those summits on the existing wagon road but wisely makes a two-hour detour through the United States, this obstacle on the Canadian side cannot discourage traffic on the shortest route to the prairies.

Day and night the buses, the freight trucks and the private cars turn eastward from Hope and enter Alberta through the easy and beautiful Crow's Nest Pass. Every hour or so you will pass a bus labeled "Winnipeg." In Cranbrook you will be awakened frequently during the night by a caravan of freight trucks on their way to Vancouver or Calgary.

YET this was not supposed to be the main route to the prairies and is no part of the Trans-Canada Highway which follows the Fraser Canyon and swings to Kamloops, Revelstoke and Banff; or will do so when it is finally completed, some years hence.

I am told by competent engineers that the wrong location has been chosen for the Trans-Canada through the Rockies, roughly parallel to the CPR, and that the road under construction there will be frequently plugged with snow. However that may turn out, we may be sure that the main volume of traffic to the prairies will move across the southern route.

Mr. Gagliardi, therefore, is wise to improve it as he is doing at a few points. But he has a long way to go.

MUCH of this road is narrow, twisting and quite inadequate for heavy traffic; though the unhurried traveler will find the meandering drive along the east shore of Kootenay Lake the most fascinating, perhaps, in all British Columbia. Compared to Kootenay, the lakes of Switzerland are mere puddles and the famous beauties of Italy's Lake Como not much better than a crowded slum.

However, Kootenay Lake, with its forty-minute ferry, is to be bypassed. Soon one will be able to drive straight east from Trail to Salmon, avoiding the narrow road and frightening cliffs beside the Kootenay River, avoiding Nelson also and striking directly into Creston and thence to the Crow's Nest Pass.

SINCE the bulk of traffic will use this route and will not have to cross the western arm of Kootenay Lake at Nelson to reach the ferry on the north side, I wondered why the Government is building a huge toll bridge there when the money is so desperately needed in other places, when there is still no proper highway even to Prince George, no prospect of a tolerable road out to Prince Rupert and the approaches to Vancouver from the interior are a nightmare. But no doubt Mr. Gagliardi has his reasons.

For all the notable new stretches of road here and there (the new Malahat, for example) we are a long way from a highway system, while traffic is increasing unbelievably, every village along the crowded Southern Provincial route is becoming a town, every town a city and anyone who travels for pleasure should avoid the main route altogether.

It is no use saying that the sensible traveler can take his time on the new highways. He is swept along in a river of cars, few of them moving at less than an illegal speed of sixty miles an hour.

The new highways are built for transportation solely, for speed, efficiency, discomfort and danger. They are what the public seems to want and the public is welcome to them.

Just thirty-five years ago I drove over Anarchist Mountain on a trail hardly fit for a pack horse, and a few years later rode on horseback from Princeton to Hope in a laborious week.

A few days ago I covered both these high passes in a few hours. I admired two marvels of engineering and remembered my old friend, Ernest Carson, who achieved them, but I knew no moment of peace or enjoyment until I turned off the pavement and jogged along, at about thirty, on some rough gravel road leading into a British Columbia now seldom seen by the public and almost forgotten in the age of progress, not politics.

As Our Readers See It

Wood and Inflation

I notice in the Times of Oct. 18—front page—the Premier while talking about consumer goods asked: "Where are these shortages that make for inflation?" I would without hesitation say "firewood".

I ordered, early in July two cords of firewood in one cord lots. One cord was delivered July 14 and I paid 10 dollars. The second cord was not delivered until September 22 and I paid 14 dollars. Guess this is inflation in a hurry.

Firewood should not be a shortage in the city of Victoria. It's all put down to the lumber mills using all the waste. But they should be approached to cut an adequate supply of firewood to meet the requirements of the wood users.

They were only too glad to ship this waste wood to Victoria a few years back when it could be bought for five and six dollars for two cords.

A wood board was functioning in wartime and it would not be amiss to have one again to arrange supply.

ARTHUR L. DAY

1524 Myrtle.

Fuel Beyond Price

I have heard that the city has given certain fuel dealers the right to cut wood on city property in the Sooke area in order to alleviate the fuel shortage.

However if the dealers are going to go all out and make a killing by charging $18 a cord for wood they do not even have to put stumps on I cannot see that this will help anyone except the fuel dealers. Certainly those on low income can not afford to pay $18 per cord and those on higher income will not need to buy it as they can install oil furnaces or coal stokers.

If the City Fathers really want to help out in this fuel shortage why not hire a good foreman and put city crews in to get out the wood, and haul it at cost, not double the cost as proposed by the dealers?

If this is to be undertaken at all then consider well before making it just a farce.

L. M. STROUD.

2943 Bridge Street.

Not Incompatible

We would like to reply to your correspondent Marian N. Sherman, who in the Times of Oct. 12 requests the views of the youth of a decade or so ago toward the church.

First, contrary to the suggestion in her letter, we have not found knowledge and religion incompatible. A higher education in the sciences and humanities does not necessarily result in a denial of the Christian faith; on the contrary, as our knowledge widens, so our conception of God is enriched. We have tested our beliefs, and in the laboratory of our experience they have proved true.

Second, although your correspondent infers that fellowship is not to be found in the church, we wish to state that wherever we have lived we have found fellowship of a highly satisfying nature in the church. While not confining our social contacts to church members, we have nevertheless established many enduring friendships there.

Thirdly, while we agree that youth wants leaders with sociological training, and buildings where all sorts of activities can be carried on, we feel the church is making a sincere effort to meet these needs, although hampered by lack of resources. We acknowledge our own debt to the Sunday schools, youth groups, and summer camps, which contributed to our mental, physical, social and spiritual development.

If there is a lack of interest in the church among young people today, it is due, in our opinion, to two factors: the constant flow of excitement and stimulation bombarding young people from the films and television, setting up false standards for them and blurring their sense of values; and to the lack of trained leaders in the church.

Most churches simply do not have the funds either to finance the training of leaders or to offer adequate pay for their services. Hence leadership is dependent on those who are willing to give their talents and their time.

Finally, we would like to mention the results of a scientific study of modern American marriage carried out by Dr. E. W. Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago, and Dr. P. Wallin of Stanford University. This survey is reported in the book "Courtship, Engagement and Marriage," published in 1953 by J. Lippincott & Co., and the results indicate that couples who attend church regularly have twice the chance for successful marriage as non-churchgoers. The Burgess-Wallin study clearly shows that religion is a powerful factor in preserving marriage bonds; and that one of the most effective ways a parent can prepare a child for marriage is to provide him with early and continuing religious training.

These are some of the reasons why we would recommend church affiliation to any young person today who is seeking a happy and meaningful life.

High-Priced Additive

In his disquisition on liquor and taxes the other day, Mr. Bruce Hutchison said: "One can avoid sales taxes altogether by buying nothing, drinking nothing but water (so far untaxed) and by living economically in a cave."

If water is "so far untaxed," what is the purchaser paying for the B.C.-introduced ingredient in a bottle of rum which converts it into a "Kennedy popsie" in the far north?

THE OTTAWA SCENE

In 'Difficult Circumstances'

THE ACTING LEADER of the Progressive Conservative party Hon. Earl Rowe was anything but optimistic when he was questioned on the immediate future of his political party during a televised press conference here. Replying to questions, he made no attempt to paint a rosy picture.

The retirement of a party's leader, George Drew had left the Conservatives in "difficult circumstances." There are many politicians across Canada who would agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Rowe's forebodings. Certainly there are Conservatives who privately have acknowledged that the sudden retirement of Mr. Drew just as he appeared to be making gains has left the party under a severe handicap as it prepares for the federal contest. But they would not say so publicly.

Mr. Rowe however was blunt when he replied to a reporter's question. He indicated that he saw little likelihood of the coming leadership convention improving the party's chances of winning the next election.

"I don't think this convention can improve our position. We are in difficult circumstances due to the ill health of George Drew," was his forthright reply.

Hopeful

The Acting Tory leader conceded that under the leadership of Mr. Drew the Conservative party had made progress. He hoped that the party could retain that strength but expressed the belief that the Conservatives' chances of increasing it were better before the convention was called. He added, "I hope we will not lose ground because of the situation we are in." One reporter observed that he did not appear very hopeful. Mr. Rowe came back with a retort that did not remove the air of pessimism. His reply: "I am more hopeful than a lot of people."

Not a Candidate

Incidentally Mr. Rowe emphatically declared that he would not let his name stand as a candidate for the party leadership at the convention, scheduled for the week of Dec. 10 at Ottawa. He also viewed it as unlikely that a candidate would be named as leader from outside the party's parliamentary ranks.

Other Side

George Hees, the Conservative campaigner, who has been seeking to spread the Tory gospel across Canada, is much more optimistic than his acting leader. Completing his recent western tour Mr. Hees, the Conservative M.P. for Toronto Broadview, said he was convinced John Diefenbaker as leader of the Conservatives would be able to rally to the party's banner "all those who fear the growing dictatorial tendencies of the present government." He added, "I am convinced that John will lead us to victory next year."

Reaction

Le Devoir, an influential French-language newspaper published in Montreal, does not take kindly to the suggestion that John Diefenbaker may be the next national leader of the Conservatives. In its editorial page recently it said Mr. Diefenbaker would not be acceptable to French-speaking Canada. It said the Prime Minister, Mr. MP does not speak French and has not made an attempt to learn the language.

It charged that the Saskatchewan Conservative did not understand the French-Canadian point of view. "Hansard is full of instances where Mr. Diefenbaker has indicated his anti-Quebec and anti-French Canadian views," the paper said.

Dilemma

The reaction of French Canadians to the suggestion that Mr. Diefenbaker may be selected national leader of the Conservatives has led members of the party in Ontario and Quebec, not pro-Diefenbaker, to try desperately to wreck the "Diefenbaker for leadership" movement. They are looking for an alternative choice. The man they appear agreed upon is Donald Fleming the MP for Toronto Eglinton.

But Diefenbaker appears far out in front in the leadership race. If he wins what will the Conservatives do about Quebec? Will the party under Mr. Diefenbaker's leadership set out to court its voters as Mr. Drew did, or will the Conservatives decide to campaign for support in Ontario and western Canada on a platform that is not designed to win French-Canadian support?

Future

Liberals are keenly interested in Ross Thatcher's political future. Members of the party in prominent places point out that it is important he win re-election. It will not be conducive to others crossing the floor of the House to sit with the Liberals, if the Moose Jaw ex-CF and ex-Independent goes down to defeat in the federal contest next summer. Party members have been encouraging him to seek the nomination in a seat where he would be reasonably sure of success.

Interview

The close friendship that exists between Mr. Thatcher and Fisheries Minister James Sinclair is well known. But it was carrying that friendship to an extreme when the new Liberal from Moose Jaw, made a forecast during an interview in Vancouver, that Mr. Sinclair would soon rise to the post of prime minister. There were raised eyebrows in cabinet circles over Thatcher's quoted comment that Mr. St. Laurent would "ride the election and retire six months after" leaving the government in the hands of Finance Minister Harris or Fisheries Minister Sinclair. The latter he described as the "most brilliant" man in the House of Commons. "He'll be prime minister within 10 years anyway." Others asked, what about Mr. Pearson?
